City Fireman Quits Post; Cites Low Pay as Reason

James E. Speakman has submitted his resignation from the Circleville Fire Department, effective immediately. It was announced today by Bernard Wolfe fire chief.

Wolfe said that Speakman had submitted his resignation orally two weeks ago.

The resignation leaves the department three under its full complement of 10 men. The seven men on the staff, besides the chief, are Lt. Fred Howell, Lt. Glenn Jones, Lt. Mike Brown, Dale Edwards, Chet Echard, Martin Garner, all firemen, and Tom Miner, a fireman serving under a provisional appointment.

With the reduced force, Wolfe reported that on occasion, there are only two men on duty. He stated that he tried to be at the department during the day and made an effort to have an additional fireman working at night so that three men might be on duty as much as possible.

SPEAKMAN is the second fireman to resign this month. Jame R. Armstrong had resigned effective Nov. 1.

In his letter of resignation, Speakman said:

"I regret to inform you that as of this date I must submit to you my resignation as a city firefighter. As I gave to you an oral notice two weeks prior to this date (Nov. 15), because of low pay and unsatisfactory working conditions, I find this to be necessary for my family and I.

"This resignation is effective Nov. 16 . . ."

There has been no civil service examination given for the fire department or police since last May. The Circleville Police department is also understaffed.

Richard Blaney, a veteran of 10 years on the force, submitted his resignation earlier this month to accept a post in private industry. He, too, cited low pay and long hours among the reasons for his resignation.

Circleville Chief of Police Robert Temple said today that he had heard one of the members of the force had taken the civil service examination for Chillicothe Police Department and had passed it. He anticipates that this man may resign in the near future.

Sudden Snow Hits Boston; Cars Stranded

College Students Aid Motorists; Baby Delivered

BOSTON (AP) — A violent storm dumped up to 13 inches of snow on parts of New England Wednesday, causing several deaths and a massive traffic jam in the Boston area.

Motorists were stuck in Boston traffic for hours. Many left their offices at 5 p.m.—and at midnight had progressed only a few blocks.

Thousands of cars ran out of gasoline or stalled when their batteries went dead and many motorists abandoned their cars on the street.

Four fatalities were attributed to the storm.

Robert Jones, a Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority bus driver, said students from area college, including Harvard, Radcliffe, MIT and Boston University, were pushing cars, directing traffic and bringing coffee, sandwiches and cookies to stranded motorists.

"It was absolutely amazing to me," he said, "especially where they knock kids so much. These kids weren't pro or con anything. They weren't handing out literature."

He said the students apparently "were digging into their own pockets to buy the food and coffee which they handed out."

A Boston City Hospital doctor and a nurse ran through the blinding snow to deliver a baby girl in a car trapped in traffic two blocks away.

Sabeno Rivera was driving his wife, Carmela, 23, to the hospital when they were caught in the snarled traffic. A policeman reported their plight to the hospital and Dr. Beach Conger, nurse Rosemary O'Brien and three helpers with medical supplies and a stretcher ran to the car where the baby was delivered.

Both mother and baby later were reported in good condition.

House OKs Pared Down Poverty Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — An antipoverty bill cut by $460 million has cleared the House and both the budget-cutters and administration supporters claim a victory.

Republicans succeeded in cutting the money total well below President Johnson's request but the pared-down version—with all its controversial programs intact—then sailed through 283 to 129, the biggest margin in its three-year history.

As it passed the House Wednesday night after a long, frequently raucous session, the bill would extend the Office of Economic Opportunity's programs for one year at an authorized spending level of $1.6 billion.

That's the amount the OEO had last year. Johnson had asked for $2.06 billion to expand the antipoverty program this year.

The Senate has already authorized $2.25 billion and a compromise agreement will now have to be worked out.

Phone Charges Under Scrutiny

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hearings on special-equipment charges by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio entered the final stage today.

Ohio Bell finished its case Wednesday and rebuttal began on the issue primarily concerned with charges for the Trim-Line and Princess telephones.

Newsme who viewed the suspect at a news conference Wednesday night saw a man apparently in his 60s with several days' growth of stubble. He sat silent in the glare of television lights, wearing a light gray coat and faded brown trousers. When a reporter handed him a microphone, he gave it to Valdes who did not permit questions.

Mueller was believed dead by many Germans, but last week the West German Central Office for Nazi Crimes said it had uncovered a new "hot trail" to him. It came from Simon Wiesenthal, the Viennese Nazi hunter who directed Israeli agents to Eichmann in Argentina.

Valdes said he personally arrested the man in a Panama City restaurant and described him as a peddler of ties, honey and liquor who had lived in Pan-

U.S. Navy Bombers Hit Hanoi Shipyard

See Vietnam Troop Boost

'Westy' To Seek Fast Deployment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland reportedly will press for earlier deployment of troops already authorized but won't ask for a bigger U.S. troop commitment in South Vietnam, sources say.

These same sources predicted Westmoreland's request will be agreed to today when the U.S. commander in South Vietnam meet with President Johnson at the White House.

Westmoreland's talks with Johnson continue high-level Vietnam conferences begun Wednesday when the President met with Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam.

Joining the President and Bunker at luncheon were Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, Chairman Earle G. Wheeler of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, director Richard Helms of the Central Intelligence Agency and special presidential assistant Walt W. Rostow.

After talking with Westmoreland today, Johnson is to meet with Robert Komer, chief of the U.S. pacification effort in South Vietnam.

Bunker reportedly gave Johnson a cautiously optimistic report on American progress in Vietnam and Westmoreland, on his arrival by plane Wednesday from Saigon, told newsmen: "It is very, very encouraging. I have never been more encouraged in my four years in Vietnam."

Military progress by U.S. and South Vietnamese forces was reportedly behind Westmoreland's request that authorized troop levels be reached more quickly than now scheduled.

There now are about 468,000 American fighting men in Vietnam and Johnson earlier this year authorized boosting the total by 57,000 troops to 525,000 by next July 1.

Wilberforce Now Quiet

WILBERFORCE, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio National Guard has pulled out of Central State University and all was quiet on the campus today, three days after a student riot.

Most of the students at the predominantly Negro school left here after officials ordered the school closed Tuesday. A few, some who had transportation problems and several foreign students, remained however.

Dr. Warren C. Nelson, dean of Central State's College of Education, said a few graduate classes were being held at buildings in nearby Xenia and Springfield.

The more than 90 arrested in Monday night's bottle-throwing disturbance all appeared in Xenia Municipal Court Wednesday for arraignment on various charges stemming from violation of the state's riot act.

None arraigned entered pleas and their cases were continued. All classes are expected to resume after the Thanksgiving holidays.

The patients were taken to nearby private homes but were expected to be back in the home within a few hours as electric and heating service was restored.

Ten of the patients were bedfast in first floor rooms and had to be carried out.

Fire Chief Bert Lukananni estimated the damage to the building and its contents at $3,500.

The fire chief said Mrs. Elsie Williams, who directs operations of the home and lives on the premises, and Ed White, a custodian, said they smelled smoke and found the fire in an empty storage room on the third floor. They tried to fight it with fire extinguishers before calling firemen.

FBI, Justice Department Clash over 'Strike Force'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI and its parent agency, the Justice Department, are at odds over the department's new "strike force" concept for fighting organized crime.

As a result, the FBI has refused to join fully the new anti-crime force—practically the only civilian federal investigative agency to decline full participation.

Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark made public the new concept earlier this week in a New York speech when he announced the department will set up several "strike forces" to probe organized crime in selected areas.

The decision was based on a highly successful operation during the past year in Buffalo, N.Y., which resulted in 14 indictments affecting 31 defendants.

Under the strike force concept, seven federal investigative agencies work together on an intensive drive against organized crime in a selected area for a year or two.

Although Justice Department officials refused to discuss the disagreement, it is known they feel their job would be much easier if the FBI participated fully in the new technique.

FBI participation so far has been passive. It has not assigned agents to work on the strike forces but has made available its vast intelligence sources.

Technically, at least, the attorney general could order FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to assign agents to the strike force, but Clark is said to be reluctant to do so. Although the FBI is part of the Justice Department it operates practically as an autonomous agency.

Insiders familiar with FBI operations say the bureau's opposition to participating fully in the plan is based on three premises:

—The FBI traditionally likes to work alone and take the credit—or the blame—alone.

—The FBI over the years has sought to keep separate the investigating and prosecuting functions of the Justice Department. The bureau does the investigating; the department does the prosecuting.

—The bureau is not convinced that the intensive work of the strike forces—spread possibly over an 18-month or two-year period—would be lasting. It feels that once a drive is completed the target area may slip back under control of the local crime syndicate branch. Department officials are known to feel, however, that the key to a successful fight against organized crime is continual surveillance.

Youth Detained In Murder Probe

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati police filed a first-degree murder charge today against a 19 year old youth in connection with the slaying early Tuesday of Rodney Dale Hummel, 25, a part time gasoline service station attendant.

The youth charged was listed as Carl Williams. He was arrested Wednesday night.

Detectives Bernard Kersker and Charles Rutledge said another person was being sought in the shooting.

Sgt. Russell Jackson of the Homicide Squad said robbery apparently was the motive in the slaying, although it appeared no money was taken from Hummel or the service station cash register.

The patients were taken to nearby private homes but were expected to be back in the home within a few hours as electric and heating service was restored.

Ten of the patients were bedfast in first floor rooms and had to be carried out.

Fire Chief Bert Lukananni estimated the damage to the building and its contents at $3,500.

The fire chief said Mrs. Elsie Williams, who directs operations of the home and lives on the premises, and Ed White, a custodian, said they smelled smoke and found the fire in an empty storage room on the third floor. They tried to fight it with fire extinguishers before calling firemen.

Red Forces Avoid Contact In Ground War

177 Americans Killed in Week; 1,802 Reds Die

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Navy planes bombed a boat construction and repair yard close to the center of Haiphong and only 1.7 miles from the international docks today for the first time in the Vietnam war.

A U.S. spokesman said A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Coral Sea struck at noon at the "Haiphong Shipyard No. 2," only one mile west of the geographical center of the city.

The U.S. spokesman said the boatyard hit today was on a small river called the Tram Bac. The yard previously had been on the Pentagon's list of off-limits targets.

There was no immediate word on the extent of damage.

In the ground war in South Vietnam, Communist forces generally avoided a close combat but made three mortar and gunfire attacks which killed 26 Americans and wounded 53.

Red mortars also hit the forward base camp at Dak To for the fifth time in 24 hours, causing little damage, but U.S. officers reported the earlier shelling at the battleground in the central highlands Wednesday destroyed 1,100 tons of ammunition.

'Model Cities' List Released By Inouye

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of Sen. Daniel X. Inouye, D-Hawaii, announced today a list of cities which, he was informed, will share in the new model cities program for improving blighted neighborhoods.

The list included: Huntsville, Ala.; Texarkana, Ark.; Fresno and Oakland, Calif.; Denver and Trinidad, Colo.; Bridgeport, Hartford and New Haven, Conn.; Washington, D.C.; Dade County, Fla.; Tampa, Fla.; Atlanta, Ga.; Gainesville, Ga.; Honolulu, Hawaii; Chicago; St. Louis; Gary, Ind.; Des Moines, Iowa; Pikeville, Ky.

Baltimore, Boston, Cambridge, Lowell, and Springfield, Mass.; Detroit, and Highland Park, Mich.; Duluth and Minneapolis, Minn.; Kansas City, Mo.; Manchester, N. Ham.

Hoboken, Newark and Trenton, N.J.; Albuquerque, N.M.; Buffalo, Central and East Harlem, South Bronx, Central Brooklyn, Poughkeepsie and Rochester, New York.

Charlotte, N.C.; Columbus, Dayton and Toledo, Ohio; Tulsa, Okla.; Portland, Ore.; Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Reading-Burke County, and Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

San Juan, Puerto Rico; Providence, R.I.; Nashville, Davidson County and Smithville-DeKalb County, Tenn.; Eagle Pass, San Antonio, Texarkana, and Waco, Texas; Winooski, Vt.; Norfolk, Va.; Seattle, Wash.

The chosen cities will share in the $312 million approved by Congress for initial planning costs.

The program will concentrate on a single blighted neighborhood of each city.

Final selections were pared from an original list of 293 cities that applied.

Cincinnati Radio Announcer Dies

X15 Crash Cause Sought by NASA

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — "I'm in a spin... I'm in a spin."

Those words from the calm-voiced pilot of an X15 rocket plane that plunged into the desert from an altitude of more than 50 miles Wednesday left investigators with a mystery.

Air Force Maj. Michael J. Adams went down to his death with the plane. Adams reported control troubles, but officials say that alone wasn't enough to cause the crash.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said Adams may have delayed pulling his ejection mechanism in a last ditch effort to gain control. That delay may have cost him his life.

Adams had reported control problems with the plane's dampers—devices to reduce oscillation as the craft is controlled. Then radar trackers showed he had regained control — but only for a very few seconds.

After flights investigating maneuverability in space X15s descend from high altitude on a glide path about 30 degrees below horizontal. The stubby ships come down pancake style as they enter denser atmosphere, where the pilot switches from automatic to manual control.

The X15 burns its 10 tons of fuel in about 85 seconds as it accelerates. Then the ship noses over and begins the long dive to earth.

As it enters denser atmosphere the pilot begins to pull the craft out of its dive and begins a glide to a landing. This is where Adams ran into trouble.

A NASA-Air Force board has been appointed to investigate the crash.

Man Held in Panama Ex Gestapo Chief?

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian and West German police are investigating a graying, shabby peddler arrested on suspicion that he is Heinrich Mueller, Hitler's last Gestapo chief and Adolf Eichmann's boss.

The mystery man claimed he was a 61-year-old U.S. citizen, Francis Willard Keith, born in Webb City, Mo., but Panamanian authorities said his German-accented English was barely intelligible.

His fingerprints were flown to West Berlin for comparison

Man Held in Panama Ex Gestapo Chief?

with those of Mueller, who was reported alive in Hitler's bunker just before the fall of the Nazis in 1945.

The chief of Panama's Department of Investigations, Hector Valdes, said there was a strong resemblance between the man arrested Tuesday and photographs of Mueller but his department had failed to connect the two.

"I don't believe he is the man," Valdes told a reporter.

West Germany's Justice Ministry said the suspect was identified a Mueller by a Belgian informant who also said a Belgian graphologist had confirmed the suspect's handwriting was that of the former lieutenant general in Heinrich Himmler's SS Elite Guard.

Newsme who viewed the suspect at a news conference Wednesday night saw a man apparently in his 60s with several days' growth of stubble. He sat silent in the glare of television lights, wearing a light gray coat and faded brown trousers. When a reporter handed him a microphone, he gave it to Valdes who did not permit questions.

Mueller was believed dead by many Germans, but last week the West German Central Office for Nazi Crimes said it had uncovered a new "hot trail" to him. It came from Simon Wiesenthal, the Viennese Nazi hunter who directed Israeli agents to Eichmann in Argentina.

Valdes said he personally arrested the man in a Panama City restaurant and described him as a peddler of ties, honey and liquor who had lived in Panama for eight or ten years. Valdes called him "half crazy."

In London, Dr. Gerhart Riegner, secretary-general of the World Jewish Congress, said Mueller was a leading participant in the 1942 Wannsee conference which planned the annihilation of Europe's Jews.

Two employees of the Israeli Ministry of Labor were arrested on Nov. 2 in the Munich home of Mueller's wife. Their lawyer said they were seeking evidence that Mueller was still alive and were acting as private individuals, not on government orders.

Critic Claims JFK Target of 3 Men

NEW YORK (AP) — A new critic of the Warren report claims that three gunmen in three different locations fired a total of four shots in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Josiah Thompson, a philosophy professor turned investigator, disputes the Warren Commission finding that Lee Harvey Oswald was the lone killer of the President.

Writing in the Dec. 2 issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Thompson says he based his conclusion on detailed analyses of the pictures of the assassination and testimony of certain witnesses.

Thompson said his "new evidence does not prove that the assassination was a conspiracy. Nor does it prove Oswald's innocence. It shows that the question of Oswald's guilt must remain—four years after the event—still unanswered."

In his "reconstruction," Thompson argues Kennedy was hit by the first and third shots fired at the presidential motorcade. He believes they probably came from the Texas School Book Depository but were not necessarily fired by Oswald.

Thompson claims the second shot came from a building to the rear of the motorcade—most probably the Dallas County Records building—and was the bullet that wounded Gov. John Connally.

Commenting on the Thompson thesis Wednesday, Gov. Connally disputed the fourth shot theory. "I still contend there were three shots fired. I don't believe there was more than one assassin," he said.

Almost immediately after the third shot hit Kennedy in the head, Thompson claims a fourth shot also struck the President's head. He believes this shot was fired from behind a fence to the right and in front of the motorcade.

The company also has plants in Medina and Washington Court House, Ohio, and Lansing and Tipton, Mich.

X15 Crash Cause Sought by NASA

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — "I'm in a spin...I'm in a spin."

Those words from the calm-voiced pilot of an X15 rocket plane that plunged into the desert from an altitude of more than 50 miles Wednesday left investigators with a mystery.

Air Force Maj. Michael J. Adams went down in his death with the plane. Adams reported control troubles, but officials say that alone wasn't enough to cause the crash.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said Adams may have delayed pulling his ejection mechanism in a last ditch effort to gain control. That delay may have cost him his life.

Adams had reported control problems with the plane's dampers—devices to reduce oscillation as the craft is controlled. Then radar trackers showed he had regained control — but only for a very few seconds.

After flights investigating maneuverability in space X15s descend from high altitude on a glide path about 30 degrees below horizontal. The stubby ships come down pancake style as they enter denser atmosphere, where the pilot switches from automatic to manual control.

The X15 burns its 10 tons of fuel in about 85 seconds as it accelerates. Then the ship noses over and begins the long dive to earth.

As it enters denser atmosphere the pilot begins to pull the craft out of its dive and begins a glide to a landing. This is where Adams ran into trouble.

A NASA-Air Force board has been appointed to investigate the crash.

MANY Pickaway County blood donors will be interested to know that an 18-year-old Dayton youth, a victim of hemophilia, for whom they so generously donated blood, has been returned to his home after successful major surgery in Children's Hospital on Oct. 12.

The response to the Red Cross blood appeal aided in saving the boy's life... 547 pints of blood were used to extract the necessary blood-clotting factor.

AREA game protectors report that hunters in the field on the opening day saw a lot of game and were comparatively successful... Bag checks indicated that about one out of every three hunters had a rooster pheasant, while rabbits averaged nearly one per hunter.

One hunter, a Cincinnati physician, was too successful... He shot a hen pheasant, which was counted in a bag check by a game protector... The physician has a date with Judge Sterling Lamb in Circleville Municipal Court.

On the subject of hunting, Chief of Police Robert Temple reminded residents that hunting is not allowed in the city limits.

He emphasized the pursuit of game, whether with a shotgun, bow and arrow or sling shot, constituted hunting and violators of the city ordinance prohibiting it would be prosecuted.

The chief noted that many parents permit youngsters to take bow and arrow to fields within the city limits.

Rhodes Urges Export Expansion

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Back from a South American trade mission, Gov. James A. Rhodes called today for action to develop ports of export on Lake Erie and the Ohio River.

"It is becoming more and more evident that Ohio needs a trade center to help generate foreign trade," the governor added.

Rhodes was enthusiastic at a news conference about business generated by a two-week tour of South American countries in search of export business to stimulate Ohio industry.

Man Held in Panama Ex Gestapo Chief?

PANAMA (AP) — Panamanian and West German police are investigating a graying, shabby peddler arrested on suspicion that he is Heinrich Mueller, Hitler's last Gestapo chief and Adolf Eichmann's boss.

The mystery man claimed he was a 61-year-old U.S. citizen, Francis Willard Keith, born in Webb City, Mo., but Panamanian authorities said his German-accented English was barely intelligible.

His fingerprints were flown to West Berlin for comparison with those of Mueller, who was reported alive in Hitler's bunker just before the fall of the Nazis in 1945.

The chief of Panama's Department of Investigations, Hector Valdes, said there was a strong resemblance between the man arrested Tuesday and photographs of Mueller but his department had failed to connect the two.

"I don't believe he is the man," Valdes told a reporter.

West Germany's Justice Ministry said the suspect was identified

a Mueller by a Belgian informant who also said a Belgian graphologist had confirmed the suspect's handwriting was that of the former lieutenant general in Heinrich Himmler's SS Elite Guard.

Newsme who viewed the suspect at a news conference Wednesday night saw a man apparently in his 60s with several days' growth of stubble. He sat silent in the glare of television lights, wearing a light gray coat and faded brown trousers. When a reporter handed him a microphone, he gave it to Valdes who did not permit questions.

Mueller was believed dead by many Germans, but last week the West German Central Office for Nazi Crimes said it had uncovered a new "hot trail" to him. It came from Simon Wiesenthal, the Viennese Nazi hunter who directed Israeli agents to Eichmann in Argentina.

Valdes said he personally arrested the man in a Panama City restaurant and described him as a peddler of ties, honey and liquor who had lived in Panama for eight or ten years.

Valdes called him "half crazy." In London, Dr. Gerhart Riegner, secretary-general of the World Jewish Congress, said Mueller was a leading participant in the 1942 Wannsee conference which planned the annihilation of Europe's Jews.

Two employees of the Israeli Ministry of Labor were arrested on Nov. 2 in the Munich home of Mueller's wife. Their lawyer said they were seeking evidence that Mueller was still alive and were acting as private individuals, not on government orders.

Stock Market
Up Slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market resumed a technical rally today with some of the best gains trimmed in early afternoon. Trading was active.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was up 1.3 at 310.3 with industrials up .3, rails up .5 and utilities up .3. The market rose at the start in a resumption of the recovery drive of late Wednesday which erased early losses and brought about a gain.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was up 3.06 at 558.24.

This was about 2 points below its best level of the morning but Wall Street was getting used to the erratic movements of a market which for some time has been groping for a solid base.

Gains outnumbered losses by about 3 to 1.

Prices were generally higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Ohio's New Traffic Laws

Editors Note: This is one of a series, by The Ohio Department of Highway Safety, on new traffic laws passed by the 107th General Assembly.

The only change in the license plate department is that sale of new license plates starts on March 16, instead of March 1, and registrar fees go up.

All motor vehicles must display the new plates by April 16. Either current or new plates may be displayed between March 16 and April 16.

Cost of the state licenses remain the same — $10 plus a 50-cent registrar fee. Counties have legislative approval to assess an additional $5 fee.

If a county takes advantage of the permissive tax, all its residents must pay the additional fee even if they obtain their plates in a county which does not charge the added $5.

Reserved licenses, those with letters or low numbers, will cost $11 as usual, plus a registrar fee, which jump from 35 to 50 cents. Reserved license applicants also must pay the added $5 fee, if their home county assesses it.

Every motor vehicle operated on Ohio's streets or highways must display license plates, and full responsibility for obtaining and displaying them rests with the owner whose name appears on the title certificate.

The penalty for driving without a license, or with an illegal license, is up to $25 for the first offense, $25 to $50 for the second, $50 to $100 for each subsequent offense, or imprisonment of not more than 30 days.

This law became effective Oct. 31.

Urge CAB Hearing
On Air Purchase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board's Bureau of Operating Rights said Wednesday the CAB should hold a hearing to determine whether Executive Jet Aviation (EJA), Columbus, Ohio, has divested itself of control by the Pennsylvania Railroad and should be permitted to acquire Johnson Flying Service, Missoula, Mont.

The bureau said in reply to EJA's recent motion for CAB approval of the acquisition, that the need for full development of the facts is more critical now than it was at the start, when railroad control was described in the original pleadings as being not completely possible.

Ohio University
Can Purchase Land

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University in Athens will be able to purchase an island of land in the central campus that officials have sought to acquire for about 30 years.

The Controlling Board released $42,000 to buy the property from Frank X. Rauch Jr. and his sister Jean Dupler, for a total of $112,000.

The board released $70,000 in 1965 to buy the property but a court suit delayed completion of the transaction.

The land, which contains 163 acres is virtually surrounded by university buildings.

Rhodes, Shafer
To Open Highway

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Govs. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania next month will officially open three sections of Interstate 80 near the Ohio-Pennsylvania line.

The Dec. 4 ribbon-cutting ceremonies are scheduled for a 3.5-mile section east from Ohio 7 near Hubbard, Ohio, and a 6-mile stretch west from West Middlesex, Pa. Ceremonies begin at 10:30 a. m.

The chiefs of state then officially open the Beaver Valley Expressway interchange at West Middlesex.

Control Board
OKs Medical Plan Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Controlling Board today released funds for expanded registration in the medical profession under a new law Dec. 1.

A request by Dr. W. T. Washam, executive director of the state Medical Board, for $57,535 was approved. The money for the balance of the bookkeeping year ended June 30 included $24,396 for additional personnel.

Washam said at least four more aides were needed for registration of interns and teaching fellows in hospital programs as well as for physical biannuals.

The new law boosts registration fees and requires increased enforcement against unprofessional conduct. Hearings on complaints will be stepped up, Washam told the board.

His remarks followed an observation by Sen. Robert Shaw R-16 Columbus that although attorneys are often suspended for unprofessional conduct, doctors seldom are.

In other business, the board received a progress report on purchase of land for the proposed $25 million transportation research center in the area near the Union-Logan County line.

The report showed that the state has brought or obtained options on 2,112 acres of the 5,000 acres needed with an average cost per acre of $44. The report was as of Oct. 31.

The board, in other action, released $10,881 for new electrical service and fixtures at the National Guard Armory in Alliance.

Charges Filed

Charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor have been filed against Steve Dade, 18, 216 E. Mill St., in Juvenile Court.

The charges were lodged by the parents of a girl who was allegedly kept out past curfew by Dade. The parents have also filed delinquency charges against their daughter.

A hearing date has not been set. Dade was earlier convicted by the juvenile court of taking amplifying equipment from Circleville Junior High School. The act allegedly occurred while he was 17.

He was sentenced to Mansfield Reformatory for three years, the sentence was suspended by Judge Guy G. Cline and the youth was placed on probation.

Physician
Testifies
In Slaying

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — A physician testified in Common Pleas Court today that Michael Thomas, 18, told him last May 27 that Carl A. Burgin shot him.

Dr. William Garrett said he talked with Thomas in the emergency room of Chillicothe Hospital shortly before Thomas underwent emergency surgery for a shotgun wound in the side.

Burgin is charged with first-degree murder in Thomas' death. The case is being heard by a jury of six men and six women in Judge Howard Goldsberry's court.

The shooting took place at a house four blocks from the Burgin house. Thomas was at the house with a 14-year-old baby sister when Burgin arrived and police said they were told an argument ensued.

Native Dancer
Dies at Hospital

KENNETT SQUARE, Pa. (AP) — Thoroughbred race horse Native Dancer, whose only loss in 22 races in the 1953 Kentucky Derby, died today after an operation for a blocked intestine.

Native Dancer, one of racing's best-known horses, was owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt.

He died at the University of Pennsylvania Veterinary Hospital, a hospital spokesman said. The spokesman said Native Dancer became ill on Tuesday and was brought to Penn's New Bolton animal center here Wednesday night.

Native Dancer, who won $785,000 during his career, was retired to stud at Sugamere Farms, near Baltimore in 1954.

His $20,000 stud fee was the highest in the world for a privately owned stallion. His offspring, which include Kauai King, a Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, have won over $4 million up to this year.

Police Catch
2 Wanted in Chillicothe

Circleville Police at 4:07 a. m. today apprehended two men wanted by Chillicothe Police in connection with a jewelry store burglary.

The two were identified as Thomas L. Gibson, 19, Huntington Park, Calif., and his brother, Claude R. Gibson, 24, Ypsilanti, Mich.

They were spotted traveling north on Route 23 by Policeman Robert Sadler after he had heard the radio message from Ross County reporting the two were wanted.

Sadler, Sgt. Rod List and Patrolman Arthur Finley stopped the car the two were driving north of the city on Route 23.

They were driving a car allegedly stolen in Portsmouth. Arrested by local authorities for auto theft, they were turned over to Chillicothe Police today.

Black Power
Negro Won't
Enter Army

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fred Brooks, 20, controversial Black Power Negro, refused today to take the oath of allegiance signifying his induction into the Army. His case was turned over to state and federal officials for action.

Refusal to be drafted, under federal law, is punishable on conviction by up to five years in federal prison. The U.S. district attorney's office, state and local draft officials were notified of Brooks' action, but a state Selective Service spokesman said it will be "several days before we can process the case."

Brooks, chairman of the Nashville Chapter of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, reported as ordered to his local draft board office this morning. But an Army spokesman said he refused to step forward when it came time to take the oath.

"I don't think the Army wants me, man," Brooks told a newsman at the draft board office. "I think I'd do more harm than good."

The office in the citizens Bank Building will serve a 19-county area. David B. Kallich will be supervisor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If penalties for the possession of marijuana were removed from the law its use "would go right through the roof," Henry L. Giordano, federal narcotics commissioner has told congressmen.

"I hate to think what the problem might have been today if there had been no marijuana controls," Giordano told a House government operations subcommittee. "In today's ever-growing hedonistic society, it is obvious the results would have been disastrous."

He said marijuana is "definitely a dangerous drug with potentials for far-reaching damage to individuals and society."

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Central Intelligence Agency has told its recruiters in the New York, Boston, and Washington areas to shift their recruiting of college students from on-campus sites to nearby federal office buildings.

The reason: The CIA says it prefers to move its interviews off campus rather than risk touching off a demonstration that might embarrass a university.

Ex-Cellmate Of Valachi Is Missing

FORT LEE, N.J. (AP) — Ralph Wagner, the 34-year-old ex-cellmate of Joseph Valachi and reputed Cosa Nostra boss Vito Genovese has been missing since Oct. 19, police report.

According to federal authorities, it was Wagner who tipped off Valachi that Genovese planned to have him killed, when the three shared a cell in a federal penitentiary in Atlanta, Ga.

It was this tip, authorities said, that resulted in Valachi's bludgeoning to death a fellow inmate—the wrong man in an attempt to save his own life, and to Valachi's subsequent appearance before a Senate committee in 1963.

During the hearings, Valachi told senators that he had received word he had been marked for death by Genovese, who did not like the way he had been acting.

Wagner, who had served a total of 15 years in prison on narcotics, assault and robbery conviction, was believed to have been a musclemans and enforcer for Valachi in the 1950s.

When Valachi started telling the Senate committee about the Cosa Nostra crime syndicate, Wagner was taken from the cell he had shared with Genovese and Valachi and placed in isolation from other inmates.

To members of the organized crime syndicate—unhappy at their sudden and unwelcome attraction of public attention through Valachi's disclosures—the implication was that Wagner tipped off Valachi.

Authorities said however that he subsequently appeared to have gotten back in with the mob.

Shortly after he was released from the penitentiary and returned to his father's home, here, they said, he began to wear flashy clothing and drive big cars—without a known source of income.

He was reported missing by his father on Oct. 29.

Drug Costs Are Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — "In this high-risk industry," says a spokesman for prescription drug makers, "a high rate of profit is essential to attract the capital and other resources necessary to achieve further breakthroughs in medical progress."

But C. Joseph Stetler, president of the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, said although the industry's profits are above average, drug prices are going down while other prices are going up.

He told a Senate Small Business Subcommittee investigating drug pricing that the Labor Department's consumer price index shows retail prescription drug price have declined more than 10 per cent in the last 10 years.

Stetler said "Only one out of about 6,000 compounds tested by drug companies turns out to be a marketable product, and even then it can reach the market only after year of animal and clinical testing."

Lorain Teachers Stay Off Job

LORAIN, Ohio (AP)—Failing to reach agreement with the Board of Education on pay raises and other issues, public school teachers here planned to stay away from class today.

The teacher voted 417 to 90 Wednesday to hold a "professional study day" today instead of attending classes. However, school Supt. Joe F. Calta said prior to the voting that the school doors will be open.

The city school system has 17,122 pupils and 630 teachers.

Court Sets Execution For Murder

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Supreme Court has set Dec. 15 as the execution date of Charles Copestick of East Liverpool, convicted in the slaying of his estranged wife.

His wife, Rebecca, was shot five times in the head after Copestick took her to East Liverpool on a shopping trip from Midland, Pa., where she had been living.

The slaying took place on June 19, 1966. Copestick was 23 years old when he married Rebecca, 17, on March 5, 1964.

In other action Wednesday, the high court agreed to consider the state's appeal in the case of Arthur L. Dodge, convicted of second-degree murder in the fatal shooting of his wife, Carole, and mother-in-law, Marian Iliff, in Findlay on March 1, 1966.

At his trial, Dodge pleaded guilty to first-degree murder but a three-judge trial court convicted him of second-degree murder. Dodge got a life term in the Ohio Penitentiary.

Mass Neurosis Feared

Computers may soon be going to school to learn to think, if one expert has his way. Dr. Seymour Papert of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at a symposium on knowledge sponsored by the National Science Foundation, complained that man hasn't really given the computer a fair chance to develop its own thinking ability.

When computers were still a toy for curious scientists, a number of attempts were made to engage the machines in games of chess. They failed miserably and the superior human players began to deride the thinking ability of the devices. Skeptics didn't resist asking, what did you expect from an electron tube?

He who laughs last may well be the computer, providing someone programs it correctly. Dr. Papert and others who have since employed the computer successfully at chess now contend the only problem all along has been the sheltered lives the machines have led.

Pointing out that man acquires knowledge perpetually through his life, and that many factors may influence him in making a decision, Dr. Papert asks how many computers have studied the strategy employed by Napoleon or the logic developed by a great mathematician?

About as large a percentage of the computer chess-playing population as the human side, one would imagine.

Disease Trigger Found?

Physicians who have been attracted to a peculiar and rare disease of the brain — which afflicts only 100 to 200 Americans annually, all fatally — are hopeful they may be on the trail of a new concept in the cause of many of the most common diseases, "smoldering" viruses.

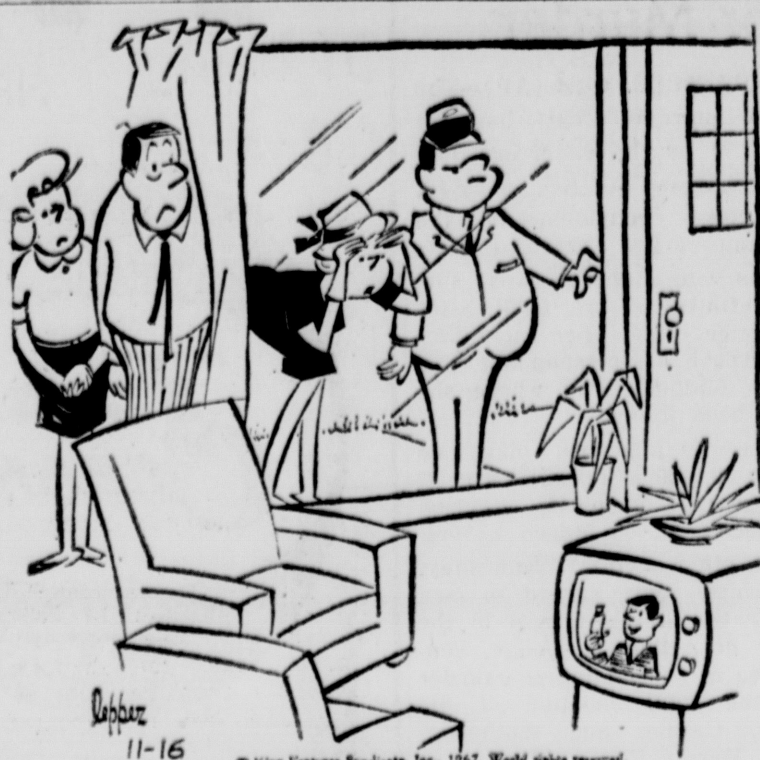

If early indications in the investigation of "subacute sclerosing panencephalitis" prove correct, it is possible that such common diseases as arthritis, cancer and hardening of the arteries might be caused by a lingering virus held over from a measles attack of many years ago.

There is no conclusive evidence so far, only the discovery of an unusually high prevalence of antibodies to measles virus in the blood of victims of the rare disease.

But this is the type of startling discovery that frequently leads to giant strides in medicine.

WHEN MRS. ULLMAN'S beloved pooch, Sadie, took sick in the middle of the night, she thought nothing of calling her veterinarian and demanding that he come over at once. "Madam," he declared indignantly, "I do not make house calls at 4 a.m." "Oh, my Sadie isn't in the house," Mrs. Ullman assured him. "She's in her kennel."

When always good-natured Herb Mayes was editing McCall's, he once turned down a story by a very prominent lady writer—and she was mighty peeved about it, too. She spied him at a cocktail party some time later and began making a series of derogatory remarks. Mayes grinned knowingly and at a moment when everybody was listening, remarked amiably, "Don't look now, my dear, but your rejection slip is showing."

Dr. William A. Spooner was a highly regarded clergyman in Britain at the turn of the century, but his chief claim to fame was his unfortunate habit of twisting words. In fact, slips of that sort are now invariably referred to as "Spoonerisms." Here are a couple of Dr. Spooner's prize boners: 1. "Beg pardon, madam, but I believe you are occupying the wrong pie." 2. "Why is it, sor, that you are continually hissing my mystery lectures?" 3. (Officiating at a wedding): "My boy, at this point it is kistomary to cuss the bride." And 4. (toasting Queen Victoria on her Golden Anniversary): "Let us all lift our cups in homage to our Queer Old Dean!"

The Business World

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The public rarely hears about industrial spying except when a scandal is involved, but the fact remains that knowledge of what the other guy is doing rates the highest priority among most marketing men.

Some of this information gathering is legitimate; more of it is considered unethical and illegal. But, as far as many marketing executives are concerned, it is also necessary.

So effectively is information gathered, for example, that a research executive recently told a conference of marketing men here:

"I have come to the conclusion that there is a very low probability of maintaining marketing secrets for any lengthy period of time. In fact...it is virtually an impossible task."

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, Nov. 16, the 320th day of 1967. There are 45 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1869, the Suez Canal was opened.

On this date: In 1776, the British captured Ft. Mifflin in what now is New York's Upper Manhattan. In 1864, Henry Clay wrote the song, "Marching Through Georgia," to commemorate Gen. William T. Sherman's march to the sea.

In 1908 Arturo Toscanini made his U.S. debut — Conducting "Aida" at New York's Metropolitan Opera House.

Ten years ago: The Democratic Advisory Council asserted that the United States, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, had fallen behind in developing the weapons of tomorrow.

Five years ago: The United States said it would continue surveillance flights over Cuba until the Castro government agreed to better means of guarding against an offensive military buildup.

One year ago: It was announced that President Johnson was in good condition after throat and abdomen operations.

Most publicity about industrial spying concerns the unethical aspects. Everyone knows about wire tapping and electronic bugging. Most people have heard that General Motors hired a detective to spy on Ralph Nader, the auto safety critic.

But without violating moral or legal codes, a dossier can be compiled easily from legitimate sources. Cocktail parties, for example.

Jack Baen, an executive of Squibb Products Co., made this report to the National Industrial Conference Board, a nonprofit research and educational organization:

"It is worth noting that when management and professional personnel attend professional and trade association meetings, they return many times stating how much competitive information was gleaned from competitive personnel."

"Strange as it may seem," he continued, "they invariably report that they have not given up any themselves."

U.S. corporate laws, which compel disclosure of sales, profits and management, also provide a good source of material. Job applicants often have vital information in their heads, which personnel men tap. And Wall Street security analysts, who often have access to management, also are cultivated.

Much of the material so fathered is raw, meaning it must be processed, analyzed, correlated, compared before its importance is revealed and it can be put to use. More and more, electronic computers are used for the job.

Dr. William Copulsky, an executive of W.R. Grace & Co., feels that so much competitive data is available legitimately, that illegal and unethical methods are usually not necessary. "The best spy," he maintains, "would be one of my salesmen. He is on the firing line."

Nevertheless, Copulsky asserts, almost 30 per cent of companies believe they are the target of illegal or unethical espionage. What, then, do these companies consider legitimate?

"Surveys showed most businessmen considered ethical methods to include use of information voluntarily offered by job applicants, taking of photos of competitive plans from a car or plane, and gathering of data at a competitor's cocktail party in connection with an industry technical meeting."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—If any one has an incurable presidential itch, it's Harold Stassen. He's been scratching for years, and he is not through yet although most people thought he was years ago.

Hope for Stassen is like a rubber band. He's been stretching it all his life.

From the exercise he got, you'd think he'd be in wonderful political condition. He's been running for something since he was 22. For a while he was so successful, back in the 1930s, he was called the "Boy Wonder" of American politics.

He's not a boy anymore. He's 60. But he never hung up his sweatshirt. He tried for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, again in 1952 and again in 1964. He never had a chance any of those times.

Meanwhile, maybe just to keep in shape for the big event later or because he was just anxious for something, he tried in 1958 for the governorship of Pennsylvania and in 1959 for the mayor's job in Philadelphia. He was drowned both times.

Tuesday he announced he would make another stab at the presidency in 1968.

Few men have outmatched his eagerness. William Jennings Bryan was a little more successful, at least in trying. He won the Democratic presidential nomination three times—1896, 1900 and 1908—only to lose in the elections.

But those two would-be presidents, Stassen and Bryan, not only couldn't hold a candle to Norman Thomas, they couldn't hold a match to him although Thomas, who got the Socialist party's presidential nomination six times, was different from Stassen and Bryan.

He almost certainly knew from the beginning that in all the times he ran a Socialist had no chance. He must have been running for the principle of the thing.

About the time Stassen was announcing, Thomas, at 83, was hospitalized Tuesday with a slight stroke. Two weeks ago he said he was withdrawing from public light but was skeptical he had made his last speech.

As if to prove it, he made a speech Saturday and was stricken shortly afterward.

But all this doesn't answer the question: What makes Harold run? Maybe he doesn't know himself. He has an explanation, though. He said Tuesday he wants to give voters a wider choice.

He said he will be a "peace" candidate, referring to the war in Vietnam. When he announced his candidacy in 1963 he said, "I should like to see the Republican party take the lead in trying to modernize the United Nations."

In this year's August edition of Esquire magazine, when he said, "I don't rule out the 1968 nomination" for himself, he gave this view:

"I want a progressive Republican party. I want a strong United Nations. I want peace in Vietnam."

But he doesn't always stick to the same line. Early in 1952 he said he was the most likely compromise candidate if a deadlock for the Republican developed between Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Sen. Robert A. Taft. In May 1952, he was saying Gov. Earl Warren of California was a likely compromise candidate.

But his worst political booby came in 1956 when he was in the Eisenhower administration and suddenly told a news conference, in an effort to block the renomination that year of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, that his own private polls showed Nixon would be a handicap to the reelection of President Eisenhower.

He suggested Christian A. Herter, governor of Massachusetts, as Eisenhower's running mate. Herter called Stassen's performance comic opera. Herter nominated Nixon. Stassen, after a brief talk with Eisenhower, seconded it.

The road was all down hill after that. Yet, at 22 he was elected a county attorney in Minnesota and at 31 was elected governor. He was twice reelected.

Ted Hartley Career

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ted Hartley is going about a film career in the same way he won a post as naval aide at the White House: with positive thinking.

"There was absolutely no logic to my being appointed aide to President Eisenhower in 1957," he recalls. "There were other Navy officers with more senior-ty and better qualifications. But I was fascinated with the power structure of Washington and I wanted to observe it from the inside, so I put in my application. A couple of weeks later I was told to report to the White House."

Hartley was even less qualified to become an actor; his only previous experience in drama had been playing a female role in an Annapolis production. Yet his film career has been progressing, and he has his best role so far in the Cinerama epic, "Ice Station Zebra."

At age 34, the ruggedly handsome Hartley is thinking of writing his memoirs. Born in Omaha, Neb., and reared in Des Moines, Iowa, he has packed a lot of living into his lifetime. Among his experiences:

Becoming the nation's youngest pilot at 13; forming a fast friendship with Lady Astor during a cruise to England; hobnobbing with the Kennedys and other Washington society; serving as naval aide at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow; breaking his back when his Cougar jet crashed on the carrier Midway off Formosa.

He managed to survive the injury, but it was enough to get him discharged from the Navy. For lack of anything else to do, he bought a travel agency in Corpus Christi, Tex., where he was discharged.

"The business didn't prosper, but at least I got some free trips out of it," said Hartley. He sold his travel agency to become an acquisitions man for Gulf & Western.

Hartley did so well that he was lured away by another acquisition-minded firm and sent to its Nevada headquarters. But the business life paled on him, and he left the $30,000 pot for the nebulous career of a writer in Hollywood.

"Then the idea of acting presented itself," he related. "I first became interested when Rita Gam took me to sessions of the Actor's Studio in New York. I was offered a one-day role as a minister in 'Peyton Place,' and I decided to take a flier. I must have done all right, because I stayed 3½ months."

Since then he has appeared in "Walk, Don't Run," "Murderers' Row" and "Barefoot in the Park," and there's no telling where he might go from here.

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

According to Boyle

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Now in November the mind of many a paunchy, middle-age American goes back to the time, 25 years ago this month, when U.S. troops landed in force in North Africa.

But it couldn't really have been a full quarter of a century ago. It still stands so fresh and green in the memory that it must have happened only a dusty yesterday ago.

War seemed so simple to the uninitiated then. All that had to be done was to whip that hysterical little man with the mustache in Berlin. Then everybody could come marching home, stand outside the neighborhood pool hall, and start whistling at the pretty girls again.

The pessimists feared the whole job would take six months or more. They were right. It took several more landings—and a full 30 months—before the victory in Europe was fashioned.

Every man has his own recollections of those days in North Africa, our kindergarten to war. As we plowed through sullen seas toward the "iron coast" of French Morocco, a grizzled colonel who had survived the first World War, turned to me and said:

"So this is your first experience with this kind of thing? Well, what you'll wonder about forever after is how these men will find the courage within themselves to face the things they'll have to, and to do the things they must."

Only a few days later that same colonel performed a battlefield feat that won him the Medal of Honor.

Anyone who goes through combat owes his life to the help of others. I owe my life, as a gawky war reporter, to two men, neither of whose names I know and neither of whom I ever saw again.

One was a soldier who saw me on the darkened deck, just before we were to embark in our assault boats. I was carrying enough equipment to settle Africa, not just land there.

"This is going to be a wet-foot landing," he said. "With all that gear on you'll go down like a stone. Get rid of it."

I did. I got rid of everything except a pencil, a notebook and a slender volume of Emily Dickinson's poems.

Saviour No. 2 was a soldier ahead of me who, after we had been dunked in the water and I had reached a coral outcropping too weak to climb up, stretched down a wet hand of safety and pulled men from the breaking surf.

All my life I'll wonder what happened to those two soldiers.

That first morning in Africa I saw the body of a young lieutenant, his middle stained red, being trundled back in the hay of a peasant's cart. Only a few hours before I had seen him in the ship's wardroom, his arms on the shoulder of a couple of other junior officer, singing "Auld Lang Syne."

That first afternoon in Africa, I remember, Gen. George Patton "came roaring up in a tank, his famed pistols strapped to his side."

He saw a colonel standing there, wearing his green dress uniform that had row after row of award ribbons on it.

"What the hell are you," demanded Patton, "a Christmas tree?"

I remember camping with the armor in cactus patches, sleeping on the desert under a canopy of unbelievably bright stars, seeing a German prisoner and being surprised because he looked as dazed and tired and innocent as one of our own men.

I remember playing yo-yo with Gen. Rommel's troops at Kasserine Gap, and our slow but steady learning of the arts of warfare, and hillsides of crimson and blue flowers in April and the smell of almond blossoms, and the turning north to Hill 609 and Bizerte and Tunis—and victory in North Africa.

War was a hard thing to endure then, but what made it most endurable was the welded unity of purpose between the battlefield and the home front.

Where is that unity of 25 years ago, now in November, here in America and there in Vietnam?

A cigarette tastes good like a cigarette should, and you gotta see it like it is. But with the language breaking down into much bigger confusions than the one between "like" and "as," our ability to report reality is vanishing, and nobody sees anything like it is. People no longer talk, they "engage in dialogue," but the ordinary dialogue these days consists of two monologues that never meet, so it was better in the day when people simply conversed. The hippies, seeking reality, "blow their minds" (their what?) with "speed" (a dope), and thus reality becomes phantasmagoria, which is its opposite. The young campus radicals, dissatisfied with their inability to defeat majority rule by dissent, turn to "confrontation," meaning that you dissent from somebody's views by bumping into him. This practice is known as "democracy," for it is utilized chiefly by the Students for a Democratic Society. If your opponent bumps back, it is called McCarthyism.

With communications in a shambles all around us, it is no wonder we can't have a foreign policy that might be recognized as such. You try to see it like it is in Asia, but all you see is Vice President Hubert Humphrey trying to retain his liberal lodge button in America by saying that we seek to contain Red China without isolating it. But it takes two to tango, and you'd think, wouldn't you, that before building a foreign policy you'd try to define your opponents' attitudes. So far as anyone can determine the facts, the Red Chinese are totally uninterested in being de-isolated, and they are only accepting containment at the moment because they lack the power to do anything else. When we talk about discussing peace in Southeast Asia, they say it's a capitalist plot. Their price for entering the UN is to get the Formosa Chinese out of there, which hardly accords with the liberal Democratic idea — and George Romney's, too — that a "two China" policy is compatible with bringing Peking to the East River in New York. The only discernible reason the Red Chinese have for wanting to join the "united nations" is to get a better leverage spot for wrecking the capitalist West. In other words, containment can't go along with de-isolation, as long as Peking is what it is.

This is seeing it like it is in Asia, as Dean Rusk tacitly recognizes when he refuses to put the U. S. on a committee to welcome Red China into the UN. What's confusing about Dean Rusk is that he calls his policy "containment without isolation," too.

Since the quarrel over China policy is one of those things helping to split the Democrats, you might suppose that the Republicans would smirk a bit, say nothing, and sit back to reap the advantage. But no, the Republicans want all the disadvantages the Democrats have now. So the Republican National Committee's task force on foreign relations is infiltrated with believers in offering "containment without isolation" to a Red China that would only accept de-isolation in order to bust out of containment. The infiltrators offer their policy as a means of picking up Democratic votes that are repelled by Dean Rusk. They don't worry about losing Republican votes to George Wallace.

Words, words, words! They fly around without making any contact with the world as it is. The Cold War was over and we started "building bridges" at the very moment in history that the Soviet Union chose to send two billion dollars in guns, tanks and planes to the Arabs. (It was already keeping Ho Chi Minh in business.) Everything is reduced to a jargon, and the way to stop inflation is to get it first and think about it later. In the hung-up, psychedelic atmosphere that surrounds us, one wonders why the hippies ever bother to blow their minds. The reality of statesmen talking adds up to fantasy, anyway.

Mass Neurosis Feared

Computers may soon be going to school to learn to think, if one expert has his way. Dr. Seymour Papert of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, at a symposium on knowledge sponsored by the National Science Foundation, complained that man hasn't really given the computer a fair chance to develop its own thinking ability.

When computers were still a toy for curious scientists, a number of attempts were made to engage the machines in games of chess. They failed miserably and the superior human players began to deride the thinking ability of the devices. Skeptics didn't resist asking, what did you expect from an electron tube?

He who laughs last may well be the computer, providing someone programs it correctly. Dr. Papert and others who have since employed the computer successfully at chess now contend the only problem all along has been the sheltered lives the machines have led.

Pointing out that man acquires knowledge perpetually through his life, and that many factors may influence him in making a decision, Dr. Papert asks how many computers have studied the strategy employed by Napoleon or the logic developed by a great mathematician?

About as large a percentage of the computer chess-playing population as the human side, one would imagine.

Disease Trigger Found?

Physicians who have been attracted to a peculiar and rare disease of the brain — which afflicts only 100 to 200 Americans annually, all fatally — are hopeful they may be on the trail of a new concept in the cause of many of the most common diseases, "smoldering" viruses.

If early indications in the investigation of "subacute sclerosing panencephalitis" prove correct, it is possible that such common diseases as arthritis, cancer and hardening of the arteries might be caused by a lingering virus held over from a measles attack of many years ago.

There is no conclusive evidence so far, only the discovery of an unusually high prevalence of antibodies to measles virus in the blood of victims of the rare disease.

But this is the type of startling discovery that frequently leads to giant strides in medicine.

NEW YORK (AP) — Now in November the mind of many a paunchy, middle-age American goes back to the time, 25 years ago this month, when U.S. troops landed in force in North Africa.

But it couldn't really have been a full quarter of a century ago. It still stands so fresh and green in the memory that it must have happened only a dusty yesterday ago.

War seemed so simple to the uninitiated then. All that had to be done was to whip that hysterical little man with the mustache in Berlin. Then everybody could come marching home, stand outside the neighborhood pool hall, and start whistling at the pretty girls again.

The pessimists feared the whole job would take six months or more. They were right. It took several more landings — and a full 30 months — before the victory in Europe was fashioned.

Every man has his own recollections of those days in North Africa, our kindergarten to war.

As we plowed through sullen seas toward the "iron coast" of French Morocco, a grizzled colonel who had survived the first World War, turned to me and said:

"So this is your first experience with this kind of thing? Well, what you'll wonder about forever after is how these men will find the courage within themselves to face the things they'll have to, and to do the things they must."

Only a few days later that same colonel performed a battlefield feat that won him the Medal of Honor.

Anyone who goes through combat owes his life to the help of others. I owe my life, as a gawky war reporter, to two men, neither of whose names I know and neither of whom I ever saw again.

One was a soldier who saw me on the darkened deck, just before we were to embark in our assault boats. I was carrying enough equipment to settle Africa, not just land there.

"This is going to be a wet-foot landing," he said. "With all that gear on you'll go down like a stone. Get rid of it."

I did. I got rid of everything except a pencil, a notebook and a slender volume of Emily Dickinson's poems.

Savior No. 2 was a soldier ahead of me who, after we had been dunked in the water and I had reached a coral outcropping too weak to climb up, stretched down a wet hand of safety and pulled me from the breaking surf.

All my life I'll wonder what happened to those two soldiers.

That first morning in Africa I saw the body of a young lieutenant, his middle stained red, being trundled back in the hay of a peasant's cart. Only a few hours before I had seen him in the ship's wardroom, his arms on the shoulder of a couple of other junior officers, singing "Auld Lang Syne."

That first afternoon in Africa, I remember, Gen. George Patton "came roaring up in a tank, his famed pistols strapped to his side.

He saw a colonel standing there, wearing his green dress uniform that had row after row of award ribbons on it.

"What the hell are you," demanded Patton, "a Christmas tree?"

I remember camping with the armor in cactus patches, sleeping on the desert under a canopy of unbelievably bright stars, seeing a German prisoner and being surprised because he looked as dazed and tired and innocent as one of our own men.

I remember playing yo-yo with Gen. Rommel's troops at Kasserine Gap, and our slow but steady learning of the arts of warfare, and hillsides of crimson and blue flowers in April and the smell of almond blossoms, and the turning north to Hill 609 and Bizerte and Tunis — and victory in North Africa.

War was a hard thing to endure then, but what made it most endurable was the welded unity of purpose between the battlefield and the home front.

Where is that unity of 25 years ago, now in November, here in America and there in Vietnam?

Laff-A-Day

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

WHEN MRS. ULLMAN'S beloved pooch, Sadie, took sick in the middle of the night, she thought nothing of calling her veterinarian and demanding that he come over at once. "Madam," he declared indignantly, "I do not make house calls at 4 a.m." "Oh, my Sadie isn't in the house," Mrs. Ullman assured him. "She's in her kennel."

When always good-natured Herb Mayes was editing McCall's, he once turned down a story by a very prominent lady writer — and she was mighty peeved about it, too. She spied him at a cocktail party some time later and began making a series of derogatory remarks. Mayes grinned knowingly and at a moment when everybody was listening, remarked amiably, "Don't look now, my dear, but your rejection slip is showing."

Dr. William A. Spooner was a highly regarded clergyman in Britain at the turn of the century, but his chief claim to fame was his unfortunate habit of twisting words. In fact, slips of that sort are now invariably referred to as "Spoonerisms." Here are a couple of Dr. Spooner's prize boners: 1. "Beg pardon, madam, but I believe you are occupying the wrong pie." 2. "Why is it, sor, that you are continually hissing my mystery lectures?" 3. (Officiating at a wedding): "My boy, at this point it is kistionary to cuss the bride." And 4, (toasting Queen Victoria on her Golden Anniversary): "Let us all lift our cups in homaage to our Queer Old Deam!"

NEW YORK (AP) — The public rarely hears about industrial spying except when a scandal is involved, but the fact remains that knowledge of what the other guy is doing rates the highest priority among most marketing men.

Some of this information gathering is legitimate; more of it is considered unethical and illegal. But, as far as many marketing executives are concerned, it is also necessary.

So effectively is information gathered, for example, that a research executive recently told a conference of marketing men here:

"I have come to the conclusion that there is a very low probability of maintaining marketing secrets for any lengthy period of time. In fact...it is virtually an impossible task."

TODAY In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Thursday, Nov. 16, the 320th day of 1967. There are 45 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1859, the Suez Canal was opened.

On this date, the British captured Ft. Washington in what now is New York's Upper Manhattan. In 1864, Henry Clay wrote the song, "Marching Through Georgia," to commemorate Gen. William T. Sherman's march to the sea.

In 1908 Arturo Toscanini made his U.S. debut — Conducting "Aida" at New York's Metropolitan Opera House.

Ten years ago The Democratic Advisory Council asserted that the United States, under President Dwight D. Eisenhower, had fallen behind in developing the weapons of tomorrow.

Five years ago The United States said it would continue surveillance flights over Cuba until the Castro government agreed to better means of guarding against an offensive military buildup.

One year ago: It was announced that President Johnson was in good condition after throat and abdomen operations.

Most publicity about industrial spying concerns the unethical aspects. Everyone knows about wire tapping and electronic bugging. Most people have heard that General Motors hired a detective to spy on Ralph Nader, the auto safety critic.

But without violating moral or legal codes, a dossier can be compiled easily from legitimate sources. Cocktail parties, for example.

Jack Baen, an executive of Squibb Products Co., made this report to the National Industrial Conference Board, a nonprofit research and educational organization:

"It is worth noting that when management and professional personnel attend professional and trade association meetings, they return many times stating how much competitive information was gleaned from competitive personnel."

"Strange as it may seem," he continued, "they invariably report that they have not given up any themselves."

U.S. corporate laws, which compel disclosure of sales, profits and management, also provide a good source of material. Job applicants often have vital information in their heads, which personnel men tap. And Wall Street security analysts, who often have access to management, also are cultivated.

Much of the material so fathered is raw, meaning it must be processed, analyzed, correlated, compared before its importance is revealed and it can be put to use. More and more, electronic computers are used for the job.

Dr. William Copulsky, an executive of W.R. Grace & Co., feels that so much competitive data is available legitimately, that illegal and unethical methods are usually not necessary. "The best spy," he maintains, "would be one of my salesmen. He is on the firing line."

Nevertheless, Copulsky asserts, almost 30 per cent of companies believe they are the target of illegal or unethical espionage. What, then, do these companies consider legitimate?

"Surveys showed most businessmen considered ethical methods to include use of information voluntarily offered by job applicants, taking of photos of competitive plans from a car or plane, and gathering of data at a competitor's cocktail party in connection with an industry technical meeting."

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—If any one has an incurable presidential itch, it's Harold Stassen. He's been scratching for years, and he is not through yet, although most people thought he was years ago.

Hope for Stassen is like a rubber band. He's been stretching it all his life.

From the exercise he got, you'd think he'd be in wonderful political condition. He's been running for something since he was 22. For a while he was so successful, back in the 1930s, he was called the "Boy Wonder" of American politics.

He's not a boy anymore. He's 60. But he never hung up his sweatshirt. He tried for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, again in 1952 and again in 1964. He never had a chance any of those times.

Meanwhile, maybe just to keep in shape for the big event later or because he was just anxious for something, he tried in 1958 for the governorship of Pennsylvania and in 1959 for the mayor's job in Philadelphia. He was drowned both times.

Tuesday he announced he would make another stab at the presidency in 1968.

Few men have outmatched his eagerness. William Jennings Bryan was a little more successful, at least in trying. He won the Democratic presidential nomination three times—1896, 1900 and 1908—only to lose in the elections.

But those two would-be presidents, Stassen and Bryan, not only couldn't hold a candle to Norman Thomas, they couldn't hold a match to him although Thomas, who got the Socialist party's presidential nomination six times, was different from Stassen and Bryan.

He almost certainly knew from the beginning that in all the times he ran a Socialist had no chance. He must have been running for the principle of the thing.

About the time Stassen was announcing, Thomas, at 83, was hospitalized Tuesday with a slight stroke. Two weeks ago he said he was withdrawing from public light but was skeptical he had made his last speech.

As if to prove it, he made a speech Saturday and was stricken shortly afterward.

But all this doesn't answer the question: What makes Harold run? Maybe he doesn't know himself. He has an explanation, though. He said Tuesday he wants to give voters a wider choice.

He said he will be a "peace" candidate, referring to the war in Vietnam. When he announced his candidacy in 1963 he said, "I should like to see the Republican party take the lead in trying to modernize the United Nations."

In this year's August edition of Esquire magazine, when he said, "I don't rule out the 1968 nomination" for himself, he gave this view:

"I want a progressive Republican party. I want a strong United Nations. I want peace in Vietnam."

Ted Hartley Career

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ted Hartley is going about a film career in the same way he won a post as naval aide at the White House: with positive thinking.

"There was absolutely no logic to my being appointed aide to President Eisenhower in 1957," he recalls. "There were other Navy officers with more senior-ty and better qualifications. But I was fascinated with the power structure of Washington and I wanted to observe it from the inside, so I put in my application. A couple of weeks later I was told to report to the White House."

Hartley was even less qualified to become an actor; his only previous experience in dramatics had been playing a female role in an Annapolis production. Yet his film career has been progressing, and he has his best role so far in the Cinemascope epic, "Ice Station Zebra."

At age 34, the ruggedly handsome Hartley is thinking of writing his memoirs. Born in Omaha, Neb., and reared in Des Moines, Iowa, he has packed a lot of living into his lifetime.

Among his experiences: Becoming the nation's youngest pilot at 13; forming a fast friendship with Lady Astor during a cruise to England; hobnobbing with the Kennedys and other Washington society; serving as naval aide at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow; breaking his back when his Cougar jet crashed on the carrier Midway off Formosa.

He managed to survive the injury, but it was enough to get him discharged from the Navy. For lack of anything else to do, he bought a travel agency in Corpus Christi, Tex., where he was discharged.

"The business didn't prosper, but at least I got some free trips out of it," said Hartley. He sold his travel agency to become an acquisitions man for Gulf & Western.

Hartley did so well that he was lured away by another acquisition-minded firm and sent to its Nevada headquarters. But the business life paled on him, and he left the $30,000 pot for the nebulous career of a writer in Hollywood.

"Then the idea of acting presented itself," he related. "I first became interested when Rita Gam took me to sessions of the Actor's Studio in New York. I was offered a one-day role as a minister in 'Peyton Place,' and I decided to take a flier. I must have done all right, because I stayed 3½ months."

Since then he has appeared in "Walk, Don't Run," "Murderer's Row" and "Barefoot in the Park," and there's no telling where he might go from here.

Viet Reds Treating POWs Better?

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is telling its soldiers the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese apparently are showing a "growing awareness of the necessity for humane treatment of prisoners."

A recently-issued troop information booklet on the rights of war prisoners cites as backing for this assessment documents captured from the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The booklet was published in September, two months before the Viet Cong released this week three American Army sergeants it had held for a long time.

The Army translated and declassified two documents, both captured last year, at the request of a newsmen.

One of the documents, bearing the heading "Democratic Republic of Viet Nam," admonishes against "the binding of prisoners' legs and arms and carrying him like a pig."

It calls for "fair treatment" of prisoners and says: "We give them sufficient food and clothing. We do not beat or insult them and proceed with brainwashing..."

The document reserves to North Vietnam's Central Political Agency the decision on whether prisoners should be exploited for propaganda purposes.

"We must report to the Central Political Agency for instructions whenever we want to show them (the prisoners) before the masses in order to bring down the enemy's prestige or arouse the people's resentment," it says.

The paper says "no permission is granted to beat or to bind prisoners."

Before a prisoner is sent to a compound, it says, he will be issued pajamas: a towel, sandals or wooden shoes.

In prison, the document says, the captive "will be issued according to the prescribed standard a blanket, a mosquito net and a mat."

There are also these instructions for disposal of bodies:

— "Bury enemy bodies and mark their grave with epitaphs.

— "Gather all personal relics of killed soldiers to deliver to the Central Political Agency."

— "Keep secret the deceased's name, age, position and unit." The document spells out "verbal orders and sentences to be used with U. S. prisoners" and instructs North Vietnamese troops to memorize them.

Play 'The Promise' Quiet, Powerful

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—In Russia too, young love can be a problem.

That's the pivot of "The Promise," a quiet play of arresting power which opened Tuesday night at Henry Miller's theater. But there's more to it than that.

The production is the first exhibit on Broadway of a work by Aleksei Arbuzov, who at 59 looms large in Moscow stagecraft. Soviet theater fans have seen 1,636 performances of this piece.

The English adaptation is by Ariadne Nicolaeff and the cast of three hails from London where "The Promise" is a long-run hit. Translation and players are notable.

The story traces the trio's sentimental relationship from their first junction in siege-ravaged Leningrad of World War II, through bittersweet reunion in 1946 and to poignant final resolution in 1959.

The two-boys-find-girl equation is only Arbuzov's surface interest. Like Chekhov he is interested in the unspoken complexities of people and the torments of hope and frustration that pursue everyone.

The result is an emotional sensitivity and perceptive acuteness that reminds a spectator of such realistic fantasies as "Death of a Salesman" and "Our Town."

Arbuzov also finds space in his framework for taut and satiric comment on some aspects of Soviet life.

Eileen Atkins, here last year in "Sister George," portrays besieged femininity from youth to maturity with adroit versatility. Ian McKellen and Ian McShane, of the West End presentation, play her suitors with a kind of inarticulate eloquence.

Frank Hauser repeats as the director and William Ritman's settings trace the transitions of homelife from 1942 deolation to recent comparative affluence.

Woman Lies Of Being Kidnaped

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Laclede County Prosecutor Dean Whipple has filed a charge of making a false statement against a woman who identified herself as Vertis Drucill Blackford, 19, Canton, Ohio.

The charge was filed Wednesday night after Lebanon Police Chief Bill Marley reported the woman had admitted that a story that she was kidnaped was false.

She said a man kidnaped her from Canton at knifepoint Monday night and drove westward. Then, she said, the abductor picked up a hitchhiker near St. Louis, and he accompanied them to Lebanon.

Marley said the woman told him the two men told her to go into a Lebanon store to buy some food. When she came out with her purchases they were gone, she said.

Two men arrested here after the woman told her story to Lebanon police were questioned by the FBI. They were identified as Burt A. Landers, 40, Kensington, Conn., and Rizal Bolson Acob, 37, New York City.

Viet Reds Treating POWs Better?

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is telling its soldiers the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese apparently are showing a "growing awareness of the necessity for humane treatment of prisoners."

A recently-issued troop information booklet on the rights of war prisoners cites as backing for this assessment documents captured from the Viet Cong in South Vietnam.

The booklet was published in September, two months before the Viet Cong released this week three American Army sergeants it had held for a long time.

The Army translated and declassified two documents, both captured last year, at the request of a newsmen.

One of the documents, bearing the heading "Democratic Republic of Viet Nam," admonishes against "the binding of prisoners' legs and arms and carrying him like a pig."

It calls for "fair treatment" of prisoners and says: "We give them sufficient food and clothing. We do not beat or insult them and proceed with brainwashing..."

The document reserves to North Vietnam's Central Political Agency the decision on whether prisoners should be exploited for propaganda purposes.

"We must report to the Central Political Agency for instructions whenever we want to show them (the prisoners) before the masses in order to bring down the enemy's prestige or arouse the people's resentment," it says.

The paper says "no permission is granted to beat or to bind prisoners."

Set AFBF Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, D-N.Y., at odds recently with the American Farm Bureau Federation, has scheduled a hearing Friday in Cleveland to air what he contends is a pattern of deception against farmers by at least 21 Ohio Farm Bureau cooperatives.

PROBATE COURT NOTICE
All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Administrator filed his account in the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 21941 Charles W. Wilburn, Administrator of the estate of Theo M. Kline, deceased. Affidavit in Lieu of account.
And that said account will be for hearing and settlement before this Probate Court on Monday, December 4th, 1967, at 9 o'clock A. M. Exceptions to said account, if any, must be filed herein on or before November 28th, 1967.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Probate Court this 25th day of October, 1967.
Guy G. Cline
Probate Judge
Oct. 28; Nov. 2, 9, 16

Before a prisoner is sent to a compound, it says, he will be issued pajamas, a towel, sandals or wooden shoes.

In prison, the document says, the captive "will be issued according to the prescribed standard a blanket, a mosquito net and a mat."

There are also these instructions for disposal of bodies:

— "Bury enemy bodies and mark their grave with epitaphs.

— "Gather all personal relics of killed soldiers to deliver to the Central Political Agency."

— "Keep secret the deceased's name, age, position and unit."

The document spells out "verbal orders and sentences to be used with U. S. prisoners" and instructs North Vietnamese troops to memorize them.

Play 'The Promise' Quiet, Powerful

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—In Russia too, young love can be a problem.

That's the pivot of "The Promise," a quiet play of arresting power which opened Tuesday night at Henry Miller's theater. But there's more to it than that.

The production is the first exhibit on Broadway of a work by Aleksei Arbuzov, who at 59 looms large in Moscow stagecraft. Soviet theater fans have seen 1,636 performances of this piece.

The English adaptation is by Ariadne Nicolaef and the cast of three hails from London where "The Promise" is a long-run hit. Translation and players are notable.

The story traces the trio's sentimental relationship from first junction in siege-ravaged Leningrad of World War II, through bittersweet reunion in 1946 and to poignant final resolution in 1959.

The two-boys-find-girl equation is only Arbuzov's surface interest. Like Chekhov he is interested in the unspoken complexities of people and the torments of hope and frustration that pursue everyone.

The result is an emotional sensitivity and perceptive acuteness that reminds a spectator of such realistic fantasies as "Death of a Salesman" and "Our Town."

Arbuzov also finds space in his framework for taut and satiric comment on some aspects of Soviet life.

Eileen Atkins, here last year in "Sister George," portrays besieged femininity from youth to maturity with adroit versatility. Ian McKellen and Ian McShane, of the West End presentation, play her suitors with a kind of inarticulate eloquence.

Frank Hauser repeats as the director and William Ritman's settings trace the transitions of homelife from 1942 desolation to recent comparative affluence.

Woman Lies Of Being Kidnaped

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Laclede County Prosecutor Dean Whipple has filed a charge of making a false statement against a woman who identified herself as Vertis Drucill Blackford, 19, Canton, Ohio.

The charge was filed Wednesday night after Lebanon Police Chief Bill Marley reported the woman had admitted that a story that she was kidnaped was false.

She said a man kidnaped her from Canton at knifepoint Monday night and drove westward. Then, she said, the abductor picked up a hitchhiker near St. Louis, and he accompanied them to Lebanon.

Marley said the woman told him the two men told her to go into a Lebanon store to buy some food. When she came out with her purchases they were gone, she said.

Two men arrested here after the woman told her story to Lebanon police were questioned by the FBI. They were identified as Burt A. Landers, 40, Kensington, Conn., and Rizal Boloson Acob, 37, New York City.

Nuptial Vows Repeated in Fairview Church

Miss Sandra Adams became the bride of Joseph Stevenson 7:30 p. m. Oct. 14, in the Fairview EUB Church in Stoutsville.

The Rev. Francis Huber performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Adams of Stoutsville and Mr. Stevenson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Stevenson, 158 Fairview Ave.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, chose for her wedding a floor length gown of Chantilly lace in a princess silhouette style featuring a bateau neckline and long slim sleeves coming to points over her hands. The sheath skirt was complimented with a trapeze back with the extra fullness sweeping to the floor. A half-hat made of silk peau de soie roses and lace leaves outlined in seed pearl held her tiered veil of silk imported illusion. She carried a cascade of white carnations.

Miss Diane Ratcliff was maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Adams, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. They both wore floor length gowns with empire waistlines, and carried cascade bouquets of blue carnations.

Larry Hartley served as best man. Dennis Hartley also stood with the bridegroom. Ushers were Darrell Huffer and Harold Adams.

Miss Ann Cole, organist and Miss Jeanie Gerhart, vocalist presented a program of nuptial music.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents immediately following the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of Amanda-Clearcreek High School and is presently associated with the Buckeye Fiancee Co., Columbus. Mr. Stevenson attended Circleville High School and is employed by Owens-Illinois in Columbus.

First EUB WSWs Circle Elects Officers

Election of officers was held during the recent meeting of Circle 3 of the WSWs of First EUB Church in the home of Joanne Schlegler.

Officers elected were: Florence Mason, assistant leader; Hazel Merz, treasurer; Sue Steele, secretary of spiritual life; Bethel Burns, secretary of Christian social relations; Marie Goodman, secretary of missionary education, and Ruby McNelly, secretary of local church responsibility.

Members were reminded of the WSWs Fall Institute to be held Nov. 29, at Chillicothe First EUB Church. All were urged to attend and told that transportation will be provided.

Florence Mason presented a Thank Offering program entitled "Thanks Around the World". She asked all to make Thanksgiving a "Thanksgiving" and to count the blessings that we receive every day.

The next meeting will be a combined session with the EUB men in attendance. Refreshments were served by Joanne Schlegler, assisted by Bethel Burns.

Abel Faces Tough Time On No Steel Strike Plan

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — I. W. Abel, craggy-faced president of the United Steel Workers Union, is under considerable fire in trying to steer his big union past the twin shoals of a major strike or mass layoff next year.

The center of the controversy is a no-strike plan being discussed with the steel industry at a time when labor militancy and strikes across the nation are at a 15-year high.

"There is a big element of steel union leadership that believes it is nonsensical to give up to the right to strike," said one labor source outside Abel's union.

Steel Worker Union aides say Abel is angry at being accused of cozying up to the steel industry—the main issue on which Abel ousted David J. McDonald from the union presidency in a 1965 election.

Abel, who guided the Steel Workers to major contract gains without a strike later the same year, is reportedly undergoing his first major internal union struggle over the no-strike discussion.

The plan, which would submit major contract issues to voluntary but binding arbitration in the event of a bargaining deadlock, is far from approved and the current debate could kill it. Steel buyers usually build up large inventories before labor negotiations and the result often has been mass layoffs even when there is no strike.

Abel's dilemma, sources say.

Jury Finds Man Guilty; No Mercy

CLEVELAND (AP)—A Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court jury convicted Wayne Flonory of two counts of first-degree murder without a recommendation of mercy Wednesday night in the March 4 slaying of a bus driver.

The mandatory death sentence was deferred by Judge Thomas J. Parrino pending a psychiatric report on Flonory.

The jury of nine men and three women deliberated six hours in finding the 19-year-old Flonory guilty of premeditated murder and murder in the perpetration of robbery.

Flonory burst into tears when the verdict was read.

He was charged with killing 39-year-old Willie Jackson, a Cleveland Transit System bus driver, during a $30 holdup at a deserted bus turnaround at East 105th Street and Upont Avenue.

Jackson, father of four, pleaded for his life as he was shot five times with a .38-caliber pistol, according to testimony at the trial.

Flonory denied taking part in the holdup slaying. He is charged with five other men in the robbery-slaying of an East Side grocer three days after Jackson was slain.

Wallace Ends Tour of Ohio

CINCINNATI (AP)—Former Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama closed his six-city speaking tour of Ohio with another appeal for help to get his name on next year's presidential ballot in the Buckeye State.

Even though he repeatedly referred to "our movement" and the 1968 presidential campaign, Wallace declined to say flatly he would be a candidate.

"I'm not going to be a candidate if one of the major parties gives us an emphatic choice in 1968," he declared near the end of his 45-minute speech to about a thousand people. He was careful to say he would not be a candidate if either major party adopted a platform calling for the return of power over schools and housing to local governments.

is trying to balance off the potential losses from a strike against the effects of later layoff on about 450,000 basic steel worker.

Top steel industry officials, including chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper and U. S. Steel Chairman Roger Blough, have warned against the effect of greater steel imports that would hurt domestic producers.

In the event of a strike, or a rapid buildup of inventories, many producers are likely to turn to foreign markets if they can't buy enough steel in this country.

The industry, reportedly with union help, is asking Congress to impose quotas on steel import and Cooper, has backed the proposed no-strike plan as a boon to both union and industry.

Jetliner Blast Injures Workmen

CLEVELAND (AP) — Two workers were injured slightly Wednesday when a blast from a jet airliner blew down a warehouse office wall at Cleveland Hopkins International Airport.

Two mechanics were moving the United Airlines Boeing 727 to another part of the airport after it had been unloaded at United's freight terminal.

Freight agent Norman Bayless, 28, and a warehouseman Frank Radwan, 35, were treated at the airport clinic for cut and bruises and then sent home.

Miss Susa Honored by Optimist Club

Margaret Susa of 475 E. Main St., and a senior at Flaget High School in Chillicothe, is being honored this week as outstanding youth by Chillicothe's Optimist Club.

Miss Susa, along with her parents, will attend a special banquet as part of Youth Appreciation Week, Nov. 13-19.

The program was conceived to promote a greater measure of positive thinking in adult attitudes toward teenagers. The aim was to honor youth who are too busy growing up normally to get into trouble.

Mideast Peace Action Demanded

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Britain plans a determined effort to prod the U.N. Security Council into unanimous action toward a settlement to the Middle East stalemate, declaring that the "time to decide has come."

The United States urged the council Wednesday to reach an accord calling for Israeli withdrawal from captured Arab lands but also supporting Israel's insistence on "secure and recognized" boundaries.

"Only the parties themselves can make peace," added U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg.

The council did reach a decision on Portugal, condemning the Lisbon government for permitting foreign mercenaries to use Portuguese Angola for an abortive invasion of the Congo.

Copper, Steel Price Hikes Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders in the steel and copper industries plan price increases as the government reports a second straight monthly drop in the nation's industrial output.

As the price hikes were being announced Wednesday, Chairman William McChesney Martin of the Federal Reserve Board urged Congress to enact a tax hike to stem inflation. President Johnson's proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge appears all but dead for this session of Congress.

Martin said disruptive forces already are at work on the economy.

Adding to the economy's woes were continued scattered strikes in the auto industry.

U.S. Steel announced it will hike prices of most types of wire and various materials for railroads by less than 3 per cent, effective Nov. 27. The nation's biggest steelmaker said the products involved represent about 3 per cent of its total shipment.

The increase is the latest in a series of steel industry price boosts this year. The item involved account for more than 25 per cent of industry shipments.

Phelps Dodge Copper Products Corp., said meanwhile it will increase prices of its full range of tube products about 4 cents a pound beginning Friday.

The copper industry has been hit by a strike of miners since July 15. Phelps-Dodge said its boost will "partially compensate for the cost of obtaining copper" from other sources.

The Federal Reserve Board, announcing the decline in industrial output, blamed strikes and a 6 per cent drop in oil production resulting from an improved supply from the Middle East.

The board's index of industrial production dropped five-tenths of one point in October to 156.2 per cent of the 1957-59 base period. The index slipped 1.5 points in September, largely because of strikes—the biggest at Ford Motor Co.—and the curtailed oil production.

This marked the first time since the economic slowdown last February and March that the index dropped in two straight months.

Martin, speaking before the new index was announced, said strikes have clouded the economy's basic strength.

A similar argument was made by the President's Council of Economic Advisers. Chairman Gardner Ackley predicted last week the index would make an unexciting showing and cited the strikes as a factor. Last week, the government reported a 4.3 per cent unemployment rate—the highest in two years, and a 2 per cent drop in retail sales during October. The Ford strike was listed as a factor in the sales drop.

Cardinal Spellman Undergoes Check

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic archbishop of New York is undergoing a checkup in Cleveland Clinic.

The 78-year-old prelate was admitted to the clinic Tuesday night under an assumed name, but his presence there became known to newsmen Wednesday night.

Th Rt. Rev. Mgr. James F. Rigney, the cardinal's secretary, said in New York, "There was no emergency, and the hospital visit had been planned in advance." He said the cardinal's visit to the clinic was for a routine five-day checkup.

Findlay Schools Reopened Today

FINDLAY, Ohio (AP)—Subcommittees representing the school board here and the Findlay Education Association met Wednesday and reached an agreement ending a two-day teachers boycott.

The boycott closed Findlay's one high school, three junior highs and 10 elementary schools. Some of the schools were kept open briefly Tuesday by nonparticipating teachers aided by parents.

Benefit Hike Said Based On Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Republican leading opposition to a Democratic-backed Social Security bill charges it is based more on political factors than on sound financing.

Sen. John J. William of Delaware, who fought in the Senate Finance Committee against the bill proposing the biggest cash benefit increases in Social Security history, told the Democrats as full Senate debate began Wednesday:

"You want to boast of all the benefits you're giving the people before the election year and then put on the taxes to pay for them after the votes are counted."

Williams referred to a provision under which total benefits would be hiked by $3.5 billion next April, and by another $5.8 billion in 1969, and financed by a hike in maximum annual payroll deductions from the current $290.40 annually to $352 next year and $422.40 in 1969.

Williams and other Republicans on the committee contend the tax increases next year — election year—would not be sufficient to cover the proposed hike in benefits.

But Chairman Russell B. Long, D-La., of the Finance Committee maintained the financing plan is conservative. He said the proposed increases in benefit and taxes would mean a $2.2 billion surplus in the Social Security fund.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Better To Be Sure Than Uncertain

DEAR ABBY: The teacher called me for a conference because of an essay my daughter had written as part of a class assignment. It was entitled "My Father," and it went like this.

"My father is the worst father in the whole world. I am ashamed of him. He left us when we were small and my mother had to work to feed us. I hate him."

Abby, my daughter was four years old when her father left us, and she hasn't mentioned him in all these years. She is a moody child but I think it is just her nature. My other children seem happier and better adjusted.

Well, this teacher suggested I take my daughter to a psychiatrist. I don't believe too much in psychiatry. I went to one after my husband left me, and many hundreds of dollars later all I got of him was the sage advice that I should "adjust" to the situation and make the best of it.

I don't want an emotionally disturbed child on my hands, but I can't afford to pay a psychiatrist just because a teacher says she thinks my child needs one. What should I do?

DEAR CONCERNED: Ask your family doctor for his recommendations, after telling him the background. Far better to investigate psychiatric help for your daughter and be told she doesn't need it, than not to seek it when she does.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "WORRIED MOTHER" who is concerned about telling her 11-year-old son the facts of life sounds like many parents with whom I have talked.

After teaching elementary school for 17 years, I have found that the parents of 11-year-olds who think they are going to tell their children something new in revealing the facts of life, have a lot to learn themselves. Sincerely yours, DAVID S. MILLS, PRINCIPAL DOW, ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: I am an only child and have been married a few years. All of a sudden, after 25 years of marriage, my parents say they can no longer put up with each other's "foolishness" and they want a divorce.

I think they are being very foolish and it upsets me terribly, but I don't know how to help them solve their problem. Incidentally don't suggest that

I try to get them to see a marriage counselor because they wouldn't, not if it was the last thing they did together.

FORLORN

DEAR FORLORN: Have your parents asked for your help with their problem? I'll bet they haven't, because when two people agree that they've had "enough" of each other, as far as they're concerned, there's no problem.

The only problem I see here is yours, it's the inability to solve a non-existing problem between your parents.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding that late-working husband who made a habit of worrying his wife because he was ashamed to say to his boss, "Excuse me, I have to call my wife and let her know I'll be late."

Most bosses admire and respect an employee who shows that kind of consideration for his wife. In fact, that is one of the qualities a boss looks for when he considers a man for promotion. How do I know? I am a boss.

Teachers Not In Violation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe ruled today that teachers in the Martins Ferry school system are not subject to penalties under Ohio law banning strikes by public employees.

The decision came as a result of a dispute in the district as to whether they violated the so-called Ferguson Act during a classroom boycott last April 26-May 4.

Saxbe said that since teachers at that time filed a request to establish they were not on strike "the penalties are not applicable amid the teachers are not disqualified from receiving salary increases under the salary schedule of Sept. 1, and those provided by the legislature."

thousand Marine casualties along the demilitarized zone.

Armor for infantrymen has always been a problem in Vietnam. The 12-pound flak vest most commonly worn will stop shrapnel but not bullets. The material of the jacket is of such a close weave that some Marines call them pressure cookers.

The Army version under test has ceramic plates in a loosely woven material that allows body heat to escape. The 10 pound jacket will stop medium machinegun bullets.

The position locator, as the navigation system for infantrymen is called, still has a few bugs to be ironed out. Carried on an infantryman's back, the set's computer electrically feeds in compass bearings and the number of steps taken by its wearer and feeds out map coordinates of present position.

Theoretically an infantryman can follow a long twisting circular course over hills and rough ground and find less than a few yards' error when he arrives.

in any weather. In deep jungle minutes and lives often are lost during ambushes because allied bombers cannot figure out quickly just where the "friend lies" are.

Flame resistant flying clothes, being tested by Army and Marine airmen, promise to save many fliers. An Army pilot testing a suit was shot down in flames recently. The fire melted the nylon straps on his helmet and his seat cushions but gave him what amounted to a bad sunburn over his body, the Army reports.

Also being tested are ballistic helmets for airmen. They "sag" under glancing hits, deflecting bullets from the wearer's head.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Not all of George Bernard Shaw's witty commentaries translate as comfortably into a musical form as "My Fair Lady"—not even when the music is written by Richard Rodgers.

NBC's adaptation of "Androcles and the Lion" arrived Wednesday night having lost somewhere along the way the bite and sly satire of the Irish playwright. The score, alas, was one of Rodgers' minor efforts.

What came through in the 90 minutes was the familiar tale of a small timid tailor of ancient Rome, one of the Christians whose love of animals gave him courage to pull a thorn from the paw of a lion.

Captured by Roman soldiers, Androcles is placed in the arena with other Christians to be fed to the lions for the sport of Caesar and the populace. Of course, the lion turns out to be his old friend and his life is spared.

Norman Wisdom played Androcles in broad comedy style, even occasionally dropping into cockney baby-talk when speaking to his lion. Ed Ames had a song or two in his part of the giant who worried about his conscience. Inga Swenson appeared as a Christian girl who attracted a Roman captain—just enough for a couple of songs with him.

Noel Coward as Caesar appeared at the end of the show and had one amusing number, "The Emperor's Thumb," which he delivered with considerable style.

But at no point did there seem to be a comfortable fit of story and music. Ancient Rome and the ordeals of early Christians combined with musical comedy like oil and water. Perhaps Rodgers best number was a sort of hymn, "Follow in Our Footsteps," but, in the name of humor, even this one had the name changed at one point to "Feed Them to the Lions."

The show was a disappointment.

Youth Convicted Of Slaying Mother

CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old youth charged with first-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his mother was convicted by a Carroll County Common Pleas Court jury Wednesday with a recommendation of mercy. Judge Frank P. Cope deferred sentencing Donald R. Yoss, who was tried as an adult after a psychiatric examination.

The youth, an only child, was accused of killing his mother, Mrs. Donald E. Yoss, 34, at their home near here June 30, 1966.

Later on ABC, there was a slick attention holding adaptation of "Dial M for Murder." It is a dandy suspense story to start with and was done in good British whodunit style.

NBC will drop "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." now in its fourth season, after the Jan. 22 show. The replacement will be a variety series starring the comedy team of Rowan and Martin. The canceled show's ratings have been very low this season and its departure was expected.

NBC also confirmed officially that "Maya" will be replaced by "The Saint," in early March. The British action series did well as a summer replacement. "Accidental Family," the first series to go—on Jan. 12—will be replaced by an evening edition of the morning game show, "Hollywood Squares."

ABC has announced the postponement of its Debbie Reynolds special, scheduled for next Sunday. Like Carol Channing's show, it was taped after the strike of union technicians against the network and under an agreement not to broadcast if the strike were still on. It will be replaced by a repeat of a cartoon show, "Alice in Wonderland, or What's a Nice Kid Like You Doing in a Place Like This."

Recommended tonight: "Popendity," ABC, 9-10 EST, Variety show with comedian Flip Wilson.

Tax Need In Warren Underlined

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—Superintendent of Schools David L. Moberly says Warren city schools will have to close if a 19.5-mill operating levy is not approved by voters at a special election Dec. 12.

"This is not meant as a threat, but the hard, cold facts," Dr. Moberly said Wednesday.

The levy is a combination of 16.5 mills in renewal and three additional mills just to keep the schools open, the superintendent said. The additional money is needed, he added, to meet salary schedules for 1,900 staff members and an increase in operating costs.

The Board of Education also has voted to present at the special election a 1.3-mill levy to provide funds for 10 special services, including kindergarten.

The levies would run for five years.

Voters rejected a 20.8-mill levy by a 400-vote margin at the Nov. 7 election, when a majority was needed for passage. In the special election the two issues will require a 55 per cent affirmative vote.

State foundation funds also would be cut off if the millage is not approved, Moberly said.

RFK Adds Drama to McCarthy's Primary Bid

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's hint that he might alter his announced support of President Johnson in 1968 adds new drama to the potential opposition candidacy of Minnesota Democratic Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Kennedy said Wednesday that McCarthy is likely to generate some important backing if he enters presidential primaries as an outspoken opponent to Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

Asked how McCarthy candidacy would affect his previously announced decision to support President Johnson's expected bid for re-election despite his criticism of some of the President's Vietnam policies, the New York senator said:

"I perhaps will have something to say further if Sen. McCarthy announces."

Kennedy also said if he were Johnson he'd consider McCarthy's possible candidacy "very serious," and added: "I think he'll (McCarthy) receive some support around the country. I think from the people I've talked to, in California, New England, the Midwest, he'll have some support."

Kennedy was interviewed on the CBS Evening News.

McCarthy has said he was considering getting in to the race for the Democratic nomination because he felt Ken-edy's announced intention of supporting Johnson left a vacuum in which voters had no direct way of expressing their opposition to Vietnam policy.

McCarthy wasn't immediately available for comment on Kennedy's statements. But in an earlier interview Wednesday the Minnesotan said any bid he makes for the Democratic nomination would aim at giving voters a chance to exert the kind of pressure he thinks might cause Johnson to change his course in Vietnam.

"Vietnam is an important issue and it can't be pushed aside," he said. "It is the kind of issue that should be presented squarely to the people under the established procedures of American politics."

"It has got to be presented with personal identification. It can't be dealt with as an abstract issue. If it is identified with a personality in the primaries the people can make their judgment."

McCarthy said personal political ambitions don't enter into the matter. Some Democratic colleagues suspect he is counting on antiwar sentiment to produce a respectable showing for him which—like with national publicity—would make him a factor in the fight for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

McCarthy said he hasn't even thought about 1972.

The Minnesota senator dismissed as furthest from his mind reports that he hopes by his venture to offer a future party leadership challenge to Kennedy.

'Longest Train' Reaches Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—A four-mile long monster, billed by the Norfolk & Western Railway as "the longest and heaviest freight train in railroad history," rolled into Portsmouth Wednesday.

The 500-car freight, its 48,157 tons pulled by six diesel engines, made the 159-mile trip from Jaeger, W. Va. to here. The big load being carried mostly was coal.

PROBATE COURT NOTICE
All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Executor and Administratrices have filed their inventories and appraisements in the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 22827 Avis Grace Dresbach and Sue D. Gearhart, Administratrices of the estate of Judd H. Dresbach, deceased.

No. 22756 David L. Kraft, Executor of the estate of John Kaiser, deceased.

And that said inventories will be for hearing and settlement before the Probate Court on Monday, December 4th, 1967, at 9 o'clock A. M. Exceptions to said inventories, if any, must be filed herein on or before November 28th, 1967.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Probate Court this 15th day of November, 1967.

Guy G. Cline
Probate Judge
Nov. 16, 23

But he does not deny the obvious—that Kennedy's resistance to being shoved into opposing Johnson next year contributed to his now near decision to take the plunge himself.

McCarthy says frankly that he would hope to revive the Adlai E. Stevenson liberal strain in the party and give the John F. Kennedy people somebody to rally around next year in view of Robert Kennedy's absence from the fray.

When he persisted in putting Stevenson's name before the 1960 Democratic convention, McCarthy won the plaudits of the party liberals. But the price he paid was a subsequent frosty, arms-length relationship with the Kennedys.

He conceivably could find one of the clan, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., standing in for the President in the Massachusetts primary. This is one of four tests McCarthy may undertake, with the others in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and California.

Meanwhile some party dissidents, organizing as a group called Concerned Democrats, said McCarthy would be the featured speaker at a national meeting Dec. 23 in Chicago.

Allard K. Lowenstein, the conference organizer, said the group's purpose is "to replace President Johnson with a candidate who will reverse his actions in Vietnam and their consequences at home and abroad."

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Not all of George Bernard Shaw's witty commentaries translate as comfortably into a musical form as "My Fair Lady"—not even when the music is written by Richard Rodgers.

NBC's adaptation of "Androcles and the Lion" arrived Wednesday night having lost somewhere along the way the bite and sly satire of the Irish playwright. The score, alas, was one of Rodgers' minor effort.

What came through in the 90 minutes was the familiar tale of a small timid tailor of ancient Rome, one of the Christians whose love of animals gave him courage to pull a thorn from the paw of a lion.

Captured by Roman soldiers, Androcles is placed in the arena with other Christians to be fed to the lions for the sport of Caesar and the populace. Of course, the lion turns out to be his old friend and his life is spared.

Norman Wisdom played Androcles in broad comedy style, even occasionally dropping into cockney baby-talk when speaking to his lion. Ed Ames had a song or two in his part of the giant who worried about his conscience. Inga Swenson appeared as a Christian girl who attracted a Roman captain—just enough for a couple of songs with him.

Noel Coward as Caesar appeared at the end of the show and had one amusing number, "The Emperor's Thumb," which he delivered with considerable style.

But at no point did there seem to be a comfortable fit of story and music. Ancient Rome and the ordeals of early Christians combined with musical comedy like oil and water. Perhaps Rodgers best number was a sort of hymn, "Follow in Our Footsteps," but, in the name of humor, even this one had the name changed at one point to "Feed Them to the Lions."

The show was a disappointment.

Youth Convicted Of Slaying Mother
CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP)—A 17-year-old youth charged with first-degree murder in the shotgun slaying of his mother was convicted by a Carroll County Common Pleas Court jury Wednesday with a recommendation of mercy. Judge Frank P. Cope deferred sentencing Donald R. Yoss, who was tried as an adult after a psychiatric examination.

The youth, an only child, was accused of killing his mother, Mrs. Donald E. Yoss, 34, at their home near here June 30, 1966.

Later on ABC, there was a slick attention holding adaptation of "Dial M for Murder." It is a dandy suspense story to start with and was done in good British whodunit style.

NBC will drop "The Man from U.N.C.L.E." now in its fourth season, after the Jan. 22 show. The replacement will be a variety series starring the comedy team of Rowan and Martin. The canceled show's ratings have been very low this season and its departure was expected.

NBC also confirmed officially that "Maya" will be replaced by "The Saint," in early March. The British action series did well as a summer replacement. "Accidental Family," the first series to go—on Jan. 12—will be replaced by an evening edition of the morning game show, "Hollywood Squares."

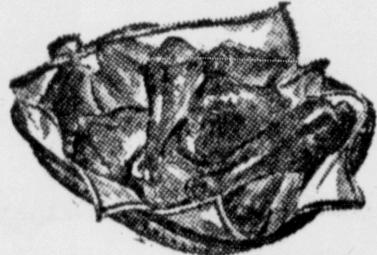

ABC has announced the postponement of its Debbie Reynolds special, scheduled for next Sunday. Like Carol Channing's show, it was taped after the strike of union technicians against the network and under an agreement not to broadcast if the strike were still on. It will be replaced by a repeat of a cartoon show, "Alice in Wonderland, or What's a Nice Kid Like You Doing in a Place Like This."

Recommended tonight: "Popendipity," ABC, 9-10 EST. Variety show with comedian Flip Wilson.

Tax Need In Warren Underlined

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—Superintendent of Schools David L. Moberly says Warren city schools will have to close if a 19.5-mill operating levy is not approved by voters at a special election Dec. 12.

"This is not meant as a threat, but the hard, cold facts," Dr. Moberly said Wednesday.

The levy is a combination of 16.5 mills in renewal and three additional mills just to keep the schools open, the superintendent said. The additional money is needed, he added, to meet salary schedules for 1,000 staff members and an increase in operating costs.

The Board of Education also has voted to present at the special election a 1.3-mill levy to provide funds for 10 special services, including kindergarten.

The levies would run for five years.

Voters rejected a 20.8-mill levy by a 400-vote margin at the Nov. 7 election, when a majority was needed for passage. In the special election the two issues will require a 55 per cent affirmative vote.

State foundation funds also would be cut off if the millage is not approved, Moberly said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interstate Commerce Commission's hearings into the merger of the Norfolk & Western and Chesapeake & Ohio Railway systems has been postponed until next Wednesday.

RFK Adds Drama to McCarthy's Primary Bid

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's hint that he might alter his announced support of President Johnson in 1968 adds new drama to the potential opposition candidacy of Minnesota Democratic Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Kennedy said Wednesday that McCarthy is likely to generate some important backing if he enters presidential primaries as an outspoken opponent to Johnson's Vietnam war policies.

Asked how McCarthy candidacy would affect his previously announced decision to support President Johnson's expected bid for re-election despite his criticism of some of the President's Vietnam policies, the New York senator said:

"I perhaps will have something to say further if Sen. McCarthy announces."

Kennedy also said if he were Johnson he'd consider McCarthy's possible candidacy "very serious," and added: "I think he'll (McCarthy) receive some support around the country. I think from the people I've talked to, in California, New England, the Midwest, he'll have some support."

Kennedy was interviewed on the CBS Evening News.

McCarthy has said he was considering getting in to the race for the Democratic nomination because he felt Ken-edy's announced intention of supporting Johnson left a vacuum in which voters had no direct way of expressing their opposition to Vietnam policy.

McCarthy wasn't immediately available for comment on Kennedy's statements. But in an earlier interview Wednesday the Minnesotan said any bid he makes for the Democratic nomination would aim at giving voters a chance to exert the kind of pressure he thinks might cause Johnson to change his course in Vietnam.

"Vietnam is an important issue and it can't be pushed aside," he said. "It is the kind of issue that should be presented squarely to the people under the established procedures of American politics."

"It has got to be presented with personal identification. It can't be dealt with as an abstract issue. If it is identified with a personality in the primaries the people can make their judgment."

McCarthy said personal political ambitions don't enter into the matter. Some Democratic colleagues suspect he is counting on antiwar sentiment to produce a respectable showing for him which—likened with national publicity—would make him a factor in the fight for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination.

McCarthy said he hasn't even thought about 1972.

The Minnesota senator dismissed as furthest from his mind reports that he hopes by his venture to offer a future party leadership challenge to Kennedy.

'Longest Train' Reaches Portsmouth

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP)—A four-mile long monster, billed by the Norfolk & Western Railway as "the longest and heaviest freight train in railroad history," rolled into Portsmouth Wednesday.

The 500-car freight, its 48,157 tons pulled by six diesel engines, made the 159-mile trip from Jaeger, W. Va. to here. The big load being carried mostly was coal.

PROBATE COURT NOTICE

All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Executor and Administrators have filed their inventories and appraisements in the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 22827 Avis Grace Dresbach and Sue D. Gearhart, Administrators of the estate of Judd H. Dresbach, deceased.

No. 22709 David L. Kraft, Executor of the estate of John Kaiser, deceased.

And that said inventories will be for hearing and settlement before the Probate Court on Monday, December 4th, 1967, at 9 o'clock A. M. Exceptions to said inventories, if any, must be filed herein on or before November 28th, 1967.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Probate Court this 15th day of November, 1967.

Guy G. Cline
Probate Judge

Nov. 16, 23

But he does not deny the obvious—that Kennedy's resistance to being shoved into opposing Johnson next year contributed to his now near decision to take the plunge himself.

McCarthy says frankly that he would hope to revive the Adlai E. Stevenson liberal strain in the party and give the John F. Kennedy people somebody to rally around next year in view of Robert Kennedy's absence from the fray.

When he persisted in putting Stevenson's name before the 1960 Democratic convention, McCarthy won the plaudits of the party liberals. But the price he paid was a subsequent frosty, arms-length relationship with the Kennedys.

He conceivably could find one of the clan, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., standing in for the President in the Massachusetts primary. This is one of four tests McCarthy may undertake, with the others in New Hampshire, Wisconsin and California.

Meanwhile some party dissidents, organizing as a group called Concerned Democrats, said McCarthy would be the featured speaker at a national meeting Dec. 23 in Chicago.

Allard K. Lowenstein, the conference organizer, said the group's purpose is "to replace President Johnson with a candidate who will reverse his actions in Vietnam and their consequences at home and abroad."

2 Grangers To Attend National Meet

Two Pickaway County Grangers will be present at the National Grange Centennial Session being held this week in Syracuse, N. Y.

Doyle Miller and Paul Dunkle, members of Salt Creek Valley Grange, are attending the convention with 27 other Ohio Grangers this weekend.

Leaving Friday night from Pickerington, they are traveling with a group from Fairfield County who have chartered a bus for the trip.

On Saturday, Grange Agriculture Day, they will witness the Seventh Degree, attend the International Agriculture Banquet and hear an address by Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture.

After the Grange Church and Memorial Service on Sunday the group will return to Ohio.

The theme of the program for the meeting of Salt Creek Valley Grange will be "We're Thankful for Our Grange." This was announced by the Lecturer, Paul Dunkle. The meeting will be held on Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. preceded by a harvest carry-in dinner beginning at 6:30.

Members are reminded to bring the aprons to be given to the Veterans Hospital.

Granite State Having Problem

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — A Salem paving contractor confirms that it has come to the point that you can hardly get any granite in the Granite State.

The demand for New Hampshire's famous natural product so exceeds the supply that Andrew S. Donovan, vice president of the Manchester Paving Co., Inc. of Hooksett, submitted to the town of Salem recently a sidewalk contract with a stipulation he would not be able to put in the specified granite curbing until next spring.

Couple Killed In Trailer Fire

STEBUNVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Roy Westfall, 56, and his 51-year-old wife Irene were killed when fire struck the Sunset Trailer Court at Richmond in Jefferson County early Wednesday morning.

Firemen said the blaze, cause of which was unknown, destroyed two trailers. Occupants of the second trailer escaped, they said. Firemen said arson or foul play was not suspected.

Sex on College Campuses Not Widespread as Feared

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
AP Science Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Is sexual promiscuity widespread on college campuses? No, say researchers who made a four-year study of students at Stanford University and the University of California, Berkeley.

"Our investigations do not confirm the popular stereotype of widespread sexual promiscuity," says Dr. Joseph Katz of the Stanford Institute for the Study of Human Problems.

"Sexual intimacy, where it occurs, takes place in the context of a relationship that is serious rather than casual."

Establishing more communicative relations is often uppermost in couples' minds, not physical contact, he maintains.

"There are fairly large numbers of students — roughly a third of the men and a quarter of the women — who seem to date little or not at all even as college seniors," Katz says. "In spite of the very favorable male-female ratio at Stanford, over a fifth of the women students seem to have no dates in an average week in any of the four college years."

Katz and 18 other psychologists and psychiatrists analyzed tests and questionnaires from more than 3,000 members of the class of 1965, followed since their freshman days four years earlier. The researchers also collected material through eight in-depth interviews apiece with a cross section of 250 students from college entrance through graduation.

Findings are incorporated in a 666-page report, recently released, entitled "Growth and Constraint in College Students." It is one of the most massive such studies ever made.

The research was jointly financed by the Danforth Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education. It included personality development, student attitudes toward teachers and courses, relationships with fellow students and parents, occupational choice and college life development of personal values.

The students often don't learn to use their reasoning capacities with development problems they face, he adds, and often make major life decisions, including choice of careers and marriage partners, by default.

The researchers scored society's emphasis on achievement—hard work in high school to get into college, then hard work to get into graduate school and more hard work to get into a high-pay job.

"The whole structure of higher education is designed to look at external signs of success and, more rarely, to focus on the needs of the individual," the scientists note.

"Our study has not impressed us that the skill of men to further their own happiness are in a particularly advanced state," Katz comments.

Lousy Hunter Arrested, Fined

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP)

— A hunter who was quoted by authorities as saying he mistook another hunter for a deer and fired a bullet that hit him in the leg has been fined $100 and costs for careless handling of a firearm.

Victor K. Lindsey, 19, of Jalisco, N.M., was taken into Justice of the Peace Court by state game officers after Gordon Lucht of Hobbs, N.M., was wounded in the leg Nov. 13 in the Sacramento Mountains near Alamogordo.

Authorities also noted that Lindsey had bagged one deer—the bag limit—when Lucht was shot. So Lindsey was fined another $42.50 and costs for attempting to exceed the limit.

2 Grangers To Attend National Meet

Two Pickaway County Grangers will be present at the National Grange Centennial Session being held this week in Syracuse, N. Y.

Doyle Miller and Paul Dunkle, members of Salt Creek Valley Grange, are attending the convention with 27 other Ohio Grangers this weekend.

Leaving Friday night from Pickerington, they are traveling with a group from Fairfield County who have chartered a bus for the trip.

On Saturday, Grange Agriculture Day, they will witness the Seventh Degree, attend the International Agriculture Banquet and hear an address by Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Agriculture.

After the Grange Church and Memorial Service on Sunday the group will return to Ohio.

The theme of the program for the meeting of Salt Creek Valley Grange will be "We're Thankful for Our Grange." This was announced by the Lecturer, Paul Dunkle. The meeting will be held on Nov. 21 at 7:30 p.m. preceded by a harvest carry - in dinner beginning at 6:30.

Members are reminded to bring the aprons to be given to the Veterans Hospital.

Granite State Having Problem

SALEM, N.H. (AP) — A Salem paving contractor confirms that it has come to the point that you can hardly get any granite in the Granite State.

The demand for New Hampshire's famous natural product exceeds the supply that Andrew S. Donovan, vice president of the Manchester Paving Co., Inc. of Hooksett, submitted to the town of Salem recently a sidewalk contract with a stipulation he would not be able to put in the specified granite curbing until next spring.

Couple Killed In Trailer Fire

STEBUNVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Roy Westfall, 56, and his 51-year-old wife Irene were killed when fire struck the Sunset Trailer Court at Richmond in Jefferson County early Wednesday morning.

Firemen said the blaze, cause of which was unknown, destroyed two trailers. Occupants of the second trailer escaped, they said. Firemen said arson or foul play was not suspected.

High St. PTA Slates Movie

The High Street Parent Teacher Assn. will sponsor a movie at the school Saturday.

The film, entitled: "Abbott and Costello Meet Captain Kidd", stars the comedy two some as they play waiters in a waterfront inn. They come into possession of a treasure map intended for a wicked pirate captain. Hilarious complications result and it's a treasure of laughs. Also featured will be a short, "Hawaiian Holiday". This entertainment is composed of an all-Disney cast.

The doors of the school will open at 12:45 p.m. Refreshment will be served during intermission.

Farmer Is Dead, Wife Wounded

McCONNELSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — George Schlotzhauer, 57, was killed and his wife, Elsie, wounded by shotgun blasts in a farm home near Neelyville in Morgan County Wednesday night.

Sheriff Don Bailey said Mrs. Schlotzhauer told him her husband shot her and then turned the gun on himself.

Sex on College Campuses Not Widespread as Feared

By WILLIAM C. HARRISON
AP Science Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Is sexual promiscuity widespread on college campuses? No, say researchers who made a four-year study of students at Stanford University and the University of California, Berkeley.

"Our investigations do not confirm the popular stereotype of widespread sexual promiscuity," says Dr. Joseph Katz of the Stanford Institute for the Study of Human Problems.

"Sexual intimacy, where it occurs, takes place in the context of a relationship that is serious rather than casual."

Establishing more communicative relations is often uppermost in couples' minds, not physical contact, he maintains.

"There are fairly large numbers of students — roughly a third of the men and a quarter of the women — who seem to date little or not at all even as college seniors," Katz says. "In spite of the very favorable male-female ratio at Stanford, over a fifth of the women students seem to have no dates in an average week in any of the four college years."

Katz and 18 other psychologists and sociologists analyzed tests and questionnaires from more than 3,000 members of the class of 1965, followed since their freshman days four years earlier. The researchers also collected material through eight in-depth interviews apiece with a cross section of 250 students from college entrance through graduation.

Findings are incorporated in a 666-page report, recently released, entitled "Growth and Constraint in College Students." It is one of the most massive such studies ever made.

The research was jointly financed by the Danforth Foundation and the U.S. Office of Education. It included personality development, student attitudes toward teachers and courses, relationships with fellow students and parents, occupational choice and college life development of personal values.

The students often don't learn to use their reasoning capacities with development problems they face, he adds, and often make major life decisions, including choice of careers and marriage partners by default.

The researchers scored society's emphasis on achievement—hard work in high school to get into college, then hard work to get into graduate school and more hard work to get into a high-pay job.

"The whole structure of higher education is designed to look at external signs of success and, more rarely, to focus on the needs of the individual," the scientists note.

"Our study has not impressed us that the skill of men to further their own happiness are in a particularly advanced state," Katz comments.

Lowly Hunter Arrested, Fined

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — A hunter who was quoted by authorities as saying he mistook another hunter for a deer and fired a bullet that hit him in the leg has been fined $100 and costs for careless handling of a firearm.

Victor K. Lindsey, 19, of Jal, N.M., was taken into Justice of the Peace Court by state game officers after Gordon Lucht of Hobbs, N.M., was wounded in the leg Nov. 13 in the Sacramento Mountains near Alamogordo.

Authorities also noted that Lindsey had bagged one deer—the bag limit—when Lucht was shot. So Lindsey was fined another $42.50 and costs for attempting to exceed the limit.

Formal Opening Observed By Bingman Drug Store

IN MEMORY OF HEROIC EFFORT — Hall-Adkins American Legion Post 134 presented a plaque to Bingman's Drug Store today in memory of Charles Schieber and Ted Foster who lost their lives in the April explosion. The plaque read "In memory of the heroic effort made by those whose sacrifice saved many lives on April 15, 1957." Seen at the presentation are (left to right) Don Repp, secretary-treasurer of Bingman's; Franklin Crites, finance officer of the legion, presenting the plaque to Robert Scranton, president of Bingman's; vice-commanders Dixie Watters and Ralph Wallace.

Bingman Drug Store, W. Main St., is celebrating its formal opening this weekend.

Circleville Mayor Ben H. Gordon was on hand for a ribbon-cutting ceremony early Thursday morning. The observance will continue through Saturday. Visitors will register during the three-day event for gifts to be awarded Saturday. They include a portable TV, a color camera, a cartridge tape player and other gifts.

The new store was established after the former location was razed in an explosion last April. Charles Schieber, owner, and his associate pharmacist Ted Foster, were two of five persons who died in the tragedy that destroyed two other W. Main St. businesses.

THE STORE was reopened on E. Main St. as a temporary business location until the new building was completed in September.

Robert Scranton, a pharmacist and survivor of the April tragedy, is manager of the new drug store. Many of the employees who worked under Mr. Schieber have returned to their former positions. Also serving in the pharmacy is Don Repp, a registered pharmacist.

The new store features a cafeteria, huge greeting card department, gift department, tobacco counter and complete cosmetic department.

A drive-in prescription window and two full-time pharmacists are among service offered by the store.

Red Cross Board Meets

In the absence of chapter chairman, William Shockley, Howard Judd presided at the Wednesday night meeting of the Pickaway County Red Cross Board.

Mrs. Roloff Wolford, executive chairman, reporting on the current efforts of the local chapter, stated that the Christmas bags to Vietnam were completed and mailed. She also wished to remind organizations and individuals that any gift donations for the Christmas gift exchange at Chillicothe's VA Hospital should be brought to the chapter office, 167 Watt St., by Nov. 22.

Plan To Execute Viet Cong Agents

SAIGON (AP) — Three convicted Viet Cong terrorists will be executed before dawn Friday, government sources said today.

American officials were reported unhappy about the executions, the first such in more than two years, since in the past the Communists have on two occasions executed American prisoners in reprisal.

Tension Eases As Cyprus Clash Ends; 24 Killed

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Tension eased on Cyprus today as Greek Cypriot troops withdrew at sunrise from two villages they overran in the most serious outbreak of communal fighting in nearly two years.

The government forces also released to U.N. peacekeeping troops about 250 Turkish Cypriot men who had been rounded up in a house-to-house search Wednesday after eight hours of fighting.

The U.N. troops took control of the villages and prepared to return the men home.

In Ankara, Turkey's Cabinet met through the night, its armed forces were placed on the alert and Turkey's airports were closed to civilian traffic for several hours. But the Greek Cypriot backdown appeared to ease the threat of retaliation from Turkey, 40 miles north of Cyprus, and the Turkish airports reopened.

U.N. headquarters in Nicosia medical teams from the U.N.

peace force found 23 Turkish Cypriot bodies in the two villages 40 miles south of Nicosia, Turkish Kophinou and Greek-Turkish Ayios Theodoros.

Greek Cypriot officer or the scene told newsmen only one of their soldiers was killed.

U.N. headquarters in Nicosia said the total number of casualties had not been established, but seven wounded Turkish Cypriot civilians had been evacuated to Nicosia.

Turkish President Cevdet Sunay broke off a tour of Turkey's eastern provinces to hurry back to Ankara. Gen. Cemal Tural, chief of the Turkish general staff, met twice during the night with the Cabinet. One of the commanders told newsmen the armed forces had been put on the alert and might intervene in Cyprus "if necessary."

Dear Editor:

To whom it may concern, To the public of Circleville. The way I look at it if the writer of a letter in Wednesday's Herald would have known the difference between persecution and prosecution he would have probably still been a patrolman. But it looks as if Temple can manage with out him and he wouldn't have to work elsewhere and politic on the side.

But going to the fact of this kind of consideration, I'm sure a lot of the public will think twice and I think it no more than right that the public should know why he isn't still a patrolman. Seeing that he can find so many people to persecute.

And also now that we have two more of these cases coming up do you think they will have true justice in these courts.

EILEEN RAWLINSON and FATHER

Circleville, Ohio

P. S. After all if a man doesn't have his rights in a court of law after he spends his money then where does he have his rights? But furthermore, how does a man get the right to criticize a prosecutor who has done his job to the public when the man must not have done his to the public.

Mr. Editor,
The safety of one's child should be an important factor to every parent. I have been led to believe that the Westfall Board of Education has approved a bus stop, that in my opinion, threatens the safety of my child.

I have not succeeded in finding anyone to look at this stop to see if a safety hazard does exist. Road conditions and the general lay of the land create obstructions for the driver of any vehicle, and also for this child. Winter conditions will soon prevail and add to this hazard.

This stop was arranged by the driver, because he was so pressed for time. The District Superintendent told me each stop costs time and money so only one stop would be made. I cannot believe, when there is a safer and more logical place for this stop, that time and money are of more importance than a child's safety. I only live in this location and I may not be in any position to judge if any danger does exist. Yet no one seems to have the time or consideration to tell me I am wrong.

I have a letter which states this matter was discussed by the board and the one stop will continue. Since no one seems to have the power to overrule the local board, what do I as a parent do?

Transit Problem

CINCINNATI (AP)—City Solicitor William McClain disclosed Wednesday the city can gain operation of the Cincinnati Transit Co. in three ways, but canceling the company's franchise is not one.

In another effort aimed at halting the city transit strike, now over two weeks old, Councilmen Charles P. Taft and Myron Bush asked McClain for his opinion on terminating the franchise for failure to provide service.

McClain told the councilmen the city could take over the transit company by giving a year's notice under the franchise.

Fowler, Patman Tangle on Taxes

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The two white-haired Southerners, both lawyers and seasoned public men, addressed each other at the Capitol Hill hearing in the politest of tones and with expressions of personal regard. But the things they said:

Rep. Wright Patman, 74, to Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler—"It is very seldom that anyone in the Treasury Department, let alone the secretary himself, shows enough interest in the massive problem of tax-dodging via foundation to travel all the way to the Hill."

Fowler, 59, to Patman—"That comment could only come from one most uninformed."

Patman—"All I can say is I hope the Treasury is not dead, but I have not detected any promising signs of life."

Fowler, after remarking Congress has had Treasury recommendation for revising foundation laws for two years—"One could say that Congress is dead. It wouldn't advance the dialogue."

The Small Business subcommittee Patman heads, and before which Fowler appeared, is investigating Americans Building Constitutionally (ABC) of Barrington, Ill., which provides information on setting up foundations intended to be tax-free.

But the Patman-Fowler questions and answers Wednesday hit the main subject only occasionally, and bounced off in various directions.

Patman, who contends ABC is Patman: "The United States Treasury has distinguished itself by indifference, indolence and bungling."

"We would not now be plagued by the ABC if the Treasury had been on its toes instead of its back."

"The Treasury has traditionally treated the foundation tycoon with great sympathy and understanding."

Fowler: "Your remarks ... again are a reflection of complete ignorance of what is going on."

"Looking at the role these foundations play, it seems to us the proper course is prompt and effective action to correct abuses rather than to try to destroy them as institutions."

"We could use a great deal more manpower and achieve a higher state of perfection. We have appealed to Congress for the funds."

As he left, the secretary thanked the chairman for finishing his questioning at a single session and promised, "The commissioner of Internal Revenue will be here to entertain you tomorrow."

Japan To Get Bonins in Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan departs Washington bearing a promise the United States will return the Bonin Islands, including the World War II battleground of Iwo Jima, to Japan within a year.

But the 66-year-old Japanese leader was unable to win a timetable promise from President Johnson for a similar return of strategic Okinawa to Japanese control. The key American defense base is only 350 miles from the Chinese mainland.

Sato flies to New York today for meetings with U.N. Secretary General U Thant after two days of hard bargaining sessions with Johnson over Okinawa, a politically explosive issue in Japan.

Frank Moore Heads County Medical Unit

Dr. Frank R. Moore succeeds Dr. E. L. Montgomery as the president of the Pickaway County Medical society for the year 1968.

Officer elected to fill other positions of the society are: Dr. J. M. Hedges, vice president; Dr. Carlos Alvarez, secretary-treasurer; Dr. J. M. Hedges, delegate to the Ohio State Medical Assoc.; and Dr. Robert G. Smith, alternate delegate.

The last meeting of the society for the current year will be a traditional Christmas party to be held on Dec. 1.

Film Program Is Continued

Circleville Bible College is continuing its presentation of films for residents of Circleville and the surrounding area.

Friday, Nov. 17, beginning 7:30 p.m. the film "River Nile" will be shown in the college chapel on E. Ohio St.

According to the Rev. L. H. Blackstone the color film traces one of the world's most historic rivers for over 4,000 miles from the rain forests deep in the heart of Africa to its eventual absorption in the Mediterranean.

Krol Chosen For Award

CLEVELAND (AP) — The 1968 National Human Relations Award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will be presented to John J. Cardinal Krol, Roman Catholic archbishop of Philadelphia, at a banquet here Feb. 11.

His selection as recipient of the award was announced in New York Wednesday.

Cardinal Krol, a native of Cleveland, was cited by the conference for "his leadership in the ecumenical movement, both nationally and internationally; his efforts in carrying out directives of Vatican II; his work in bettering race relations in America; his labors on behalf of nationality groups; his missionary endeavors among American Indians and Negroes and his shining examples of one who believes in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man."

Monfort Heights Woman Killed

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 71-year-old suburban Monfort Heights woman apparently burned to death at her home recently, police said.

She was Rose Spaulding, who was found Wednesday by her husband, Clarence.

Police said she apparently had tried to light a cigarette and her clothing caught fire.

Clarence Spaulding, 72, found her in the kitchen upon returning from a short visit with relatives.

NAACP Starts School Drive

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People has announced the start of a new school desegregation campaign aimed at the district lines that prevent children of poor families from attending well-financed and well equipped city and suburban public schools.

Officials of the NAACP said Wednesday it had begun the first of a series of cases, primarily in the North, seeking to make equal educational opportunities for all children the responsibility of states.

Police Department Really Rank?

FLORIDA CITY, Fla. (AP) — Rank is distributed throughout the Florida City Police Department. When Police Chief Willie Fasulo wants something done, he tells Lt. Arnold Talento or Lt. Joe Agostino, who tell Sgt. Frank Suits, who tells Patrolman Maurice Boley. That's the Florida City police force.

Promotion of Agostino and Suits left Boley with no one to order around, or even to share the burden of orders. But then, he's been on the force only three months.

Nowell's Jumper Saves Americans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It wasn't as long as Jerry Harkness' record 92-foot heave Monday night, but the New Jersey Americans found Mel Nowell's 30-foot jump shot every bit as satisfying.

Nowell's jumper, which counted for three points, came with six seconds left and gave the Americans a 108-106 tie in regulation time with the New Orleans Buccaneers in their American Basketball Association game at Teaneck, N.J., Wednesday night. The Americans went on to whip the Western Division leaders 123-114 in overtime.

Harkness' record shot came as the final buzzer sounded in Dallas and gave the Indiana Pacers a one-point victory over the Chapparals. The Pacers, the Eastern Division leaders, made it two straight by whipping the Oakland Oaks Wednesday at Indianapolis 119-110.

Dallas, playing at home, lost to the Anaheim Amigos 116-105 in the other ABA game scheduled Wednesday.

Nowell's heave climaxed a last quarter rally by the Americans in which they erased a 14-point deficit. A layup by John Austin and two free throws by Tony Jackson broke a 112-112 tie in the extra period and put the Americans ahead for good.

Lavern Tart, unable to play at Pittsburgh Tuesday because of a Pennsylvania common pleas court injunction, was back in action for Oakland Wednesday, but his 25 points wasn't enough to pull the Oaks through against Indiana.

A last-quarter rally, led by Les Selvaige, gave Anaheim its victory over Dallas. Selvaige, the league leader in three-point goals, hit three of them in the winning rally and finished high for the Amigos with 24 points. John Beasley topped Dallas with 26.

San Diego Rated No. 1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a matter of producing for San Diego State, the nation's No. 1 small college football team, while for North Dakota State it's a matter of waiting and hoping.

San Diego State, 8-0 this season and winner of 24 straight, plays home games against Montana State next Saturday and Utah State, Nov. 25.

North Dakota State, ranked second, finished its regular season Nov. 4 with a 9-0 record.

A national panel of sports writers and sportscasters gave San Diego State, 30-21 winner over San Fernando Valley State last Saturday, five first place votes and a total of 116 points this week. North Dakota State received two first place votes and 96 points.

Eastern Kentucky is third with two first place votes and 65 points, followed by New Mexico Highlands with one first place vote and 58 points.

Rounding out the Top Ten are Waynesburg, Texas-Arlington, Northern Michigan, Texas A&I with a first place vote, Southwest Texas State and Morgan State.

The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8-etc. basis:

1. San Diego St. (5) 116
2. North Dakota St. (2) 96
3. Eastern Kentucky (2) 65

Scioto, Ashville, Walnut, Jackson Win Cage Tilts

Scioto, Ashville, Walnut and Jackson won Pickaway County Junior High League basketball games played Wednesday.

Scioto doubled the score on visiting Saltercreek, 54-27. Ashville downed Washington Twp., 33-22. Jackson won over Monroe, 41-27. Walnut defeated Pickaway, 43-33.

In the Scioto - Saltercreek tilt, the losers pulled within six points early in the third quarter but could get no closer. Dave Chaffin poured 22 points through the nets for the winners. Steve Fischer was the leading scorer for Saltercreek with 10 points.

Sam Wilson's nine points paced the balanced Ashville attack.

JACK Brinker and Scott Huffer scored 14 and 13 points respectively in the game between Walnut and Pickaway to provide the win. Brad Barr led the losers with 15 points.

Balanced scoring featured the Jackson victory, with Bruce Beatty notching 13, Mark Schein

Triple Threat Man Nearly Gridiron Thing of Past

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The old style all purpose kicker who handled the punting, field goal work and kickoffs has all but disappeared from the scene in pro football.

Sam Baker of the Philadelphia Eagles and Danny Villanueva of the Dallas Cowboys are the only men who do the triple job. In fact, they are the only players who handle both the punting and field goal work regularly.

Villanueva lost his job during the training season while he was recuperating from an operation but he now has taken over again. Harold Deters, the rookie field goal specialist, was placed on the taxi squad. Baker normally shares some of the punting with King Hill but the No. 2 quarterback was injured early.

Don Chandler may be back in double duty harness again now that Donny Anderson has taken over at running back for the injured Elijah Pitts, out for the season. Chandler punted once in the Baltimore game but Anderson handled whatever punting was necessary last week in the rout of Cleveland.

Five rookie punters are doing the job in the National Football League with Jim Elliott at Pittsburgh, Chuck Latourette at St. Louis, Steve Spurrier at San Francisco, last year's Heisman winner, Tom McNeill at New Orleans and Lem Barney at Detroit since Pat Studstill has been out. The American Football League's rookie punters are Larry Seiple of Miami and Terry Swanson of Boston.

Despite the problems the field goal men have been having this season most of them are veterans. The Chicago Bears' Mac Percival and the New Orleans Saints' Charley Durkee are the new boys in the NFL. Rookie place kickers in the AFL include Jan Stenerud of Kansas City and Bob Humphreys of Denver. Miami's latest is Booth Lusteg who has been bouncing from club to club while Washington picked up Gene Mingo, an ex-AFL kicker, to fill in when Charlie Gogolak's injury proved serious.

Chandler seems to be helped by the lighter work load. Last year he made 12 of 28 field goals, missed two extra points and averaged 40.9 yards punting. Relieved of the punting, he has made 11 of 17 field goals and hasn't missed over 28 conversions.

Russell Is Late; Celts Win Anyway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Celtics had just taken over first place in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division, but Player-Coach Bill Russell had a problem.

He didn't know where his car was.

Following the Celtics' 113-110 victory over San Francisco in snow-clogged Boston Wednesday night, Russell stood in his club's dressing room and said: "The first thing I want to do is find my car. I don't know where it is."

But during most of the game, the second of a doubleheader at Boston Garden, Russell knew where his car was. He was in it, and it was in a mammoth traffic snarl caused by the storm.

He finally abandoned it, caught a ride with a policeman and arrived at the Garden with just a few minutes remaining in the game. He didn't bother changing into his uniform.

In Russell's absence, General Manager Red Auerbach, who guided the Celtics to eight straight NBA titles and earned 1,037 victories before turning the coaching job over to the star center last season, stepped into the breach.

Detroit beat Philadelphia 123-120, San Diego topped New York 122-108 in the first game at Boston before only 2,645 fans and Los Angeles turned back Chicago 124-115.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Hal Smith, who twice made the National League all-star team as a catcher, was named a coach for the Cincinnati Reds today.

Smith, 36, has been a coach for the St. Louis Cardinals and a manager in the Cardinals' farm system since his retirement in 1961 because of a heart condition. He played for the Cardinals from 1956 to 1960 and was named to the 1957 and 1959 All-Star teams.

A team spokesman said that Smith, a native of Baring, Ark., who now lives in Houston, no longer has the heart condition.

Nowell's Jumper Saves Americans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It wasn't as long as Jerry Harkness' record 92-foot heave Monday night, but the New Jersey Americans found Mel Nowell's 30-foot jump shot every bit as satisfying.
Nowell's jumper, which counted for three points, came with six seconds left and gave the Americans a 108-108 tie in regulation time with the New Orleans Buccaneers in their American Basketball Association game at Teaneck, N.J., Wednesday night. The Americans went on to whip the Western Division leaders 123-114 in overtime.
Harkness' record shot came as the final buzzer sounded in Dallas and gave the Indiana Pacers a one-point victory over the Chapparals. The Pacers, the Eastern Division leaders, made it two straight by whipping the Oakland Oaks Wednesday at Indianapolis 119-110. Dallas, playing at home, lost

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a matter of producing for San Diego State, the nation's No. 1 small college football team, while for North Dakota State it's a matter of waiting and hoping.
San Diego State, 8-0 this season and winner of 24 straight, plays home games against Montana State next Saturday and Utah State, Nov. 25.
North Dakota State, ranked second, finished its regular season Nov. 4 with a 9-0 record.
A national panel of sports writers and sportscasters gave San Diego State, 30-21 winner over San Fernando Valley State last Saturday, five first place votes and a total of 116 points this week. North Dakota State received two first place votes and 96 points.
Eastern Kentucky is third with two first place votes and 63 points, followed by New Mexico Highlands with one first place vote and 58 points.
Rounding out the Top Ten are Wayneburg, Texas-Arlington, Northern Michigan, Texas A&I with a first place vote, Southwest Texas State and Morgan State.
The Top Ten, with first place votes in parentheses and total points on a 10-9-8-etc. basis:
1. San Diego St. (5) 116
2. North Dakota St. (2) 96
3. Eastern Kentucky (2) 65
4. N. Mexico Highlands (1) 58
5. Wayneburg 52
6. Texas Arlington 50
7. Northern Michigan 45
8. Texas A&I (1) 43
9. Southwest Texas 30
10. Morgan State 28

Russell Is Late; Celts Win Anyway

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Boston Celtics had just taken over first place in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division, but Player-Coach Bill Russell had a problem.
He didn't know where his car was.
Following the Celtics' 113-110 victory over San Francisco in snow-clogged Boston Wednesday night, Russell stood in his club's dressing room and said: "The first thing I want to do is find my car. I don't know where it is."
But during most of the game, the second of a doubleheader at Boston Garden, Russell knew where his car was. He was in it, and it was in a mammoth traffic snarl caused by the storm.
He finally abandoned it, caught a ride with a policeman and arrived at the Garden with just a few minutes remaining in the game. He didn't bother changing into his uniform.
In Russell's absence, General Manager Red Auerbach, who guided the Celtics to eight straight NBA titles and earned 1,037 victories before turning the coaching job over to the star center last season, stepped into the breach.
Detroit beat Philadelphia 123-120, San Diego topped New York 122-108 in the first game at Boston before only 2,645 fans and Los Angeles turned back Chicago 124-115.

Scioto, Ashville, Walnut, Jackson Win Cage Tilts

Scioto, Ashville, Walnut and Jackson won Pickaway County Junior High League basketball games played Wednesday.
Scioto doubled the score on visiting Saltcreek, 54-27. Ashville downed Washington Twp., 33-22. Jackson won over Monroe, 41-27. Walnut defeated Pickaway, 43-33.
In the Scioto - Saltcreek tilt, the losers pulled without six points early in the third quarter but could get no closer. Dave Chaffin poured 22 points through the nets for the winners. Steve Fischer was the leading scorer for Saltcreek with 10 points.
Sam Wilson's nine points paced the balanced Ashville attack.
JACK Brinker and Scott Huffer scored 14 and 13 points respectively in the game between Walnut and Pickaway to provide the win. Brad Barr led the losers with 15 points.
Balanced scoring featured the Jackson victory, with Bruce Beatty notching 13, Mark Schein

Hawks Top St. Louis, 4-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"I'm just glad," Glenn Hall once said, commenting on Bobby Hull's powerful shots, "that I only have to face them in practice."
But that was before the National Hockey League expanded. Now goalie Hall, a longtime Chicago teammate of Hull's, is just another target for the Golden Jet.
Hull fired his 15th goal of the season Wednesday night helping the Hawks beat St. Louis and Hall for the second time this week, 4-1.
Elsewhere in the NHL Wednesday, Mike Walton's three-goal that trick powered Toronto to a 4-2 victory over Boston and moved the Maple Leafs into undisputed possession of first place in the East Division. Pittsburgh blanked Philadelphia 5-0, Montreal dropped Minnesota 5-1 and Oakland whipped Los Angeles 4-1.

Triple Threat Man Nearly Gridiron Thing of Past

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The old style all purpose kicker who handled the punting, field goal work and kickoffs has all but disappeared from the scene in pro football.
Sam Baker of the Philadelphia Eagles and Danny Villanueva of the Dallas Cowboys are the only men who do the triple job. In fact, they are the only players who handle both the punting and field goal work regularly.
Villanueva lost his job during the training season while he was recuperating from an operation but he now has taken over again. Harold Deters, the rookie field goal specialist, was placed on the taxi squad. Baker normally shares some of the punting with King Hill but the No. 2 quarterback was injured early.

Bolens Lawn Keeper—

the riding mower that works year round

Here's the riding mower with a difference—multi-purpose, year round use. Clear snow now—mow and haul next summer. Attachments change easily in minutes and deliver "no-nonsense" performance. Try out the sturdy 36-in. steel blade... ideal for moving light snow from walks and drives. Also available with the Lawn Keeper is a 32-in. rotary mower attachment, a 32-in. lawn roller, a utility cart with a 7-cu. ft. capacity, and a variety of trailing attachments.

Only the Bolens Lawn Keeper puts you up-front, on top of the attachment, for a clear, unobstructed view. And only the Bolens Lawn Keeper has center-pivot steering that lets you turn in a tiny 16" turning radius that makes fast, one-pass mowing a reality.

Compare the Lawn Keeper now. You'll like the difference in price, too. It's sensibly moderate.

- Automatic friction lock stops creeping
- Electro-magnetic brake stops blade in 10 seconds

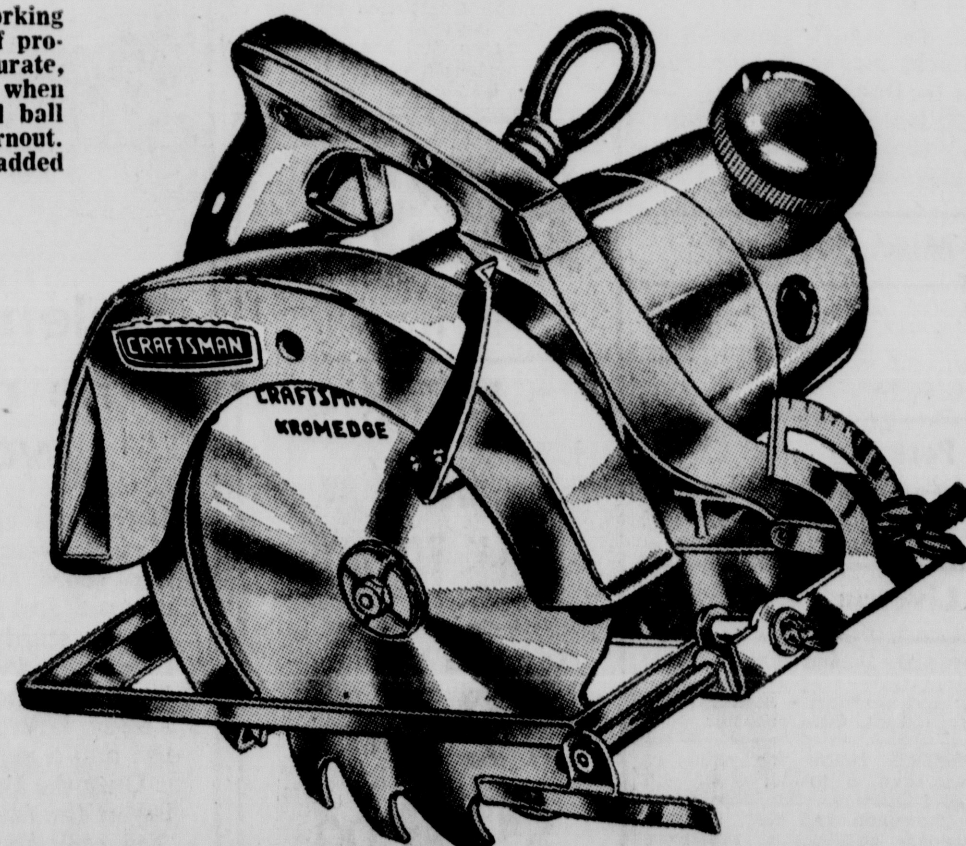

If you've been looking for a saw that gives you practically a whole woodworking shop in one tool, look no further. This radial saw meets the requirements of professional craftsmen and home workshop owners who demand extra-accurate, top quality tools. The electro-magnetic brake stops blade automatically when power is shut off. Saw slides along radial arm on permanently lubricated ball bearings. And the automatic thermal overload protector resists motor burnout. It cuts from the top so your layout marks are always in view. Keylock for added safety.
